4 Dixie Governors Call for Party Revolt

McGrath Clings To Rights Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—(AP)—A group of Southern Governors Monday night called on "Democrats everywhere" to join the revolt against President Truman's Civil Rights program.

Declaring that the South was no longer "in the bag" for the Democratic Party, they said "strong and effective" action was needed to "save" the Party and to "preserve American democracy."

The call was issued by the Governors of North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas and Arkansas after they and Gov. W. Preston Lane, Jr., of Maryland, held a show-down session with Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath.

McGrath gave a flat 'no' to their request that he work for withdrawal of Mr. Truman's anti-discrimination proposals.

They also asked McGrath—and he refused—to back restoration of the "two-thirds rule" which would give the South a veto in the choice of a Presidential candidate by this year's Democratic National Convention.

"The Southern States," the Governors said, "are aroused and the present leadership of the Democratic Party will soon realize that the South is no longer 'in the bag.'"

"Each Southern State, under the framework of an overall program, will work out the most effective means of resisting the proposals of the present leadership of the Party, but resist them we will."

"The time has come," the Governors said, "for strong and effective action by the Southern States not only to save the Democratic Party but to preserve the rights of States to govern themselves and preserve American democracy."

"In this fight we are not only expecting support from the Democrats of the South but support from Democrats everywhere who are opposed to a centralized government invading the rights of the people and the rights of the respective States."

The statement said the Governors—a committee named by the Southern Governors Conference at Tallahassee, Fla., earlier this month—would make its report to the full conference at a time and place to be announced soon.

Their statement came as Sen. Morse, Republican, Oregon, declared that the Democratic Party is in "complete collapse and ruin" as the result of a "great revolt" over civil rights.

"Republicans," Morse said in a Senate speech, "can almost go fishing and still win that (the 1948) election."

McGrath told the Governors he hoped for a "happy reunion in the not too far distant future." He said the South "has much to gain in playing along with the (Democratic) Party."

The Governors, who came here amid threats that Southern Democrats will break with the National Party over Mr. Truman's civil rights proposals, got only two assurances from the National Chairman:

He said he would not interfere with any laws that interfered with the Constitution.

S. Carolina Demo Unit Quits Party

Two thousand South Carolinians screamed their approval as the Democratic Executive Committee of Jasper County quit the party in what their leader, H. Klugh Purdy, said was "striking the match to set the South aflame."

Their action came shortly after the National Party Chairman gave a flat "no" in Washington to Southern Governors asking abandonment of the Party's civil rights program.

Purdy told his audience, jammed into the Ridgeland school building:

"While the free and the brave meet here tonight, the Governors of Southern States are in Washington trying to wring concessions from a political party... the weak and defenseless seek concessions, the strong issue ultimatums."

"Jasper County hasn't enough votes to interest a politician, but sometimes a child strikes a match which starts a forest fire which thousands of men cannot control. We hope to strike the match tonight, which will set the South aflame."

Only four of 2,000 present voted against the resolution after the Committee gave unanimous approval, making it the first Southern organization to revolt formally in the Civil Rights dispute.

Purdy said it was a sad occasion for him. "When a man who is nobody politically and not much otherwise and from the smallest county in the State is compelled to be the spokesman for the people of South Carolina."

"The leaders are shaking in their boots from fear and crying aloud to be given time to study... that time is over," he said.

The resolution charged that "the President is trying to reconstruct the South more drastically than was ever conceived by the Republican Party."

The National Democratic Party for the express purpose of gaining a few votes in the North is attempting to make the white people and Negroes of the South enemies."

The Committee voted to press for the South to send instructed electors to the electoral college as the most effective way of thwarting both Democratic and Republican parties.

Holy Land Partition Hangs on Debate Today

By THE UNITED PRESS
The great Palestine debate opens in the United Nations Security Council at Lake Success, N. Y., Tuesday morning with the fate of Holy Land partition—and perhaps that of the entire UN—at stake.

With rare unanimity, UN delegates appeared agreed Monday that the American stand would be the largest single factor in deciding whether to send an international UN Army to Palestine or back down from the UN's partition decision of last November.

Warren Austin, America's delegate to the Security Council, will make known at least part of the United States' position.

Austin's statement will revolve around the Emergency report of the UN Palestine Commission calling for an international police force to guarantee partition. In Jerusalem, sporadic firing broke out Monday night where British, Jewish and Arab forces waited grimly behind barricaded zones for any large scale assaults.

The Holy City was virtually paralyzed in the wake of the Sunday bombing of the Jewish business district which killed 66 persons. Two Arabs were killed in scattered incidents outside Jerusalem Monday.

An Arab guerrilla commander admitted responsibility for the bombing and warned of possibly even "more severe reprisals" against Jews.

Even as rescue workers continued digging for more bodies in the ruins of blasted Ben Yehuda Street, Arab Leader Abdel Kader Husselini admitted his men were responsible for the "Black Sunday" explosion.

Meanwhile, Fawzi Rey Al Kaukji, Chief of the Arab Volunteer Army, reviewed troops equipped Monday.

Chinese Money Plummets
SHANGHAI, Feb. 23—(P)—The black market rate for Chinese money nosedived again Monday. One U. S. dollar sold for 265,000 yuan—a gain of 25 percent over the weekend. The official rate is 148,500 to 1.

Co-ed in Wheel Chair Given College Degree
BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 23—(P)—Dorothy Twichell was rolled onto a stage in a wheel chair Monday to receive her master of arts degree in psychology from the University of Buffalo.

Her master's thesis was virtually her own life story. It's title: "The treatment of traumatic spinal paralysis by psychological methods."

The 31-year-old Miss Twichell, who lives in nearby Williamsville, is paralyzed as the result of an automobile accident 11 years ago.

Peters Sidesteps 'Rights' Tilt

James S. Peters, Georgia's only State Democratic Executive Committee Chairman, said Monday night he had "no comment" to make on the new threat of the South to bolt the Democratic Party in protest over President Truman's civil rights program.

He would not speculate over whether this matter even would be brought up at the State Democratic Convention which he planned to call.

Herman Talmadge, regarded as a gubernatorial candidate although he has not yet formally announced, declared he was "unalterably opposed to every principle enunciated by the President's civil rights program."

Talmadge pointed out, however, he was speaking as a private citizen and not for the State Democratic Party, since "I have no authority to speak for the Democratic Party."

Acting Gov. Thompson, who formally announced as a candidate for Governor Monday night, has expressed opposition to President Truman's civil rights program.

However, he opposed bolting the Party, contending that the South could best fight within the Party by holding seniority in Congress.

The International News Service interpreted the Georgia Supreme Court decision putting Herman Talmadge's faction in control of the State Democratic Party, as "lengthening the life of Southern Democrats who are opposed to President Truman's civil rights program."

POLICE TO RESCUE

'New Look' Excites 'Neighbors'

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—(P)—The blonde singer of the Linger Longer, Shorter, Sweeter band, less dress caused a commotion in Buenos Aires recently, wore it for blouse shop reporters Monday without bringing any whistles.

Norma Raymond, 25-year-old soprano who sings with the Argentinian orchestra, was interviewed as the liner docked after a cruise.

She said she had worn the black linen "New Look" dress in New York, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and Rio de Janeiro with no resulting excitement whatsoever.

"I ask you," she said to the reporters, "is this dress indecent?" The newsmen's heads wagged negatively.

But in Argentina, she said, the dress had these results:

One thousand "sharks"—Argentinian "f" "volves"—followed Miss Raymond through the streets on a shopping tour. "They were making cute remarks, in Spanish," she explained.

Police finally rescued her at a dress shop and escorted her to a taxi.

MISSSES BECOME MRS. TOO QUICK IN MISS. ALABAMA SOLICITOR TELLS GOV. WRIGHT

MOBILE, Ala., Feb. 23—(P)—State Solicitor Carl M. Booth appealed to Mississippi's Gov. Fielding Wright Monday to help in "stricter enforcement" of marriage laws in towns bordering Alabama.

"Mobile County courts are full of divorce and annulment cases of couples who had their marriage ceremony performed in Mississippi," he said.

"A number of the petitioners for divorce stated as their grounds they were either drunk or under age at the time of the ceremony."

"Something will have to be done about these hasty marriages. In some Mississippi towns they issue marriages at any time of the night to anyone regardless of age and condition."

Booth said the number of Mobile County couples going to Mississippi border towns to get married had increased sharply since Alabama's premarital blood test law went into effect January 2.

2-Gunman Robs Bakery of $3,500

A two-gunned hooded bandit defied pedestrians and motorists Monday night to escape behind a human shield of three victims after a $3,500 robbery.

"Come out of there," the hidden gunman commanded while slapping a windowpane behind which C. A. McDaniel, cashier of the American Bakeries Company at 600 Murphy Ave., S. W., was checking his receipts.

McDaniel, looking up into the muzzles of two guns and a black mask that completely covered a man's face, replied: "Come on in."

As the bandit, attired in a black overcoat, began covering the 12 steps around the corner to the office, he wheeled in the direction of Vernon Woods, a youth, of 431 Peachtree St., who was coming up behind him.

"Get in there," he ordered Woods, brandishing two guns. The youth, who had come to see one of the 50 bakers at work across the hall from the cashier's office, complied.

"Get down on your stomach," the tall bandit snarled at McDaniel.

"What do you want me to do?" Woods questioned.

"You, too," the burglar replied as he motioned with the guns held firmly in black-gloved hands.

"If you're smart, you won't get hurt," the disguised figure informed the pair while he ransacked desk drawers.

Clutching a bag of money snatched from the cashier's desk, the intruder strode over the pail on the floor and began searching the desk.

Another tapping on the window vibrated through the room as S. A. McHugh, lab director at the bakery, shouted, "Let's go home, Mac."

Getting no response, McHugh walked around the corner to the door and was promptly instructed to join the others on the floor.

"Where at?" McHugh asked as he surveyed the liny space.

"Anywhere—just get on the floor," the bandit ordered.

Thompson Announces Candidacy

By M. L. ST. JOHN

The State Supreme Court Monday unanimously ruled that Herman Talmadge's faction is in control of the State Democratic Party machinery. Acting Gov. Thompson immediately announced his candidacy for Governor in a Talmadge-supervised primary.

Thus ended 10 months of confusion and speculation over whether Georgia would have two Democratic primaries in 1948.

James S. Peters, of Manchester, who, the Court ruled, 6-0, is the legal Chairman of the State Democratic Party, immediately made plans for holding a State Convention to plan the primary, and to send delegates to the National Convention in Philadelphia in July.

Acting Gov. Thompson said he did not anticipate any change in the plans for Jackson-Jefferson Day Dinner scheduled here March 9. He said this dinner was sponsored by the Democratic National Party and was non-factional locally. Chairman Peters said he would "await the move" of National Party officials in regard to the Jackson-Jefferson Day dinner.

Previously, Peters and Talmadge had rejected invitations from Dinner Chairman W. T. Dean, Thompson leader, to attend the dinner on the grounds that it was a factional affair.

However, Dean said he would go ahead with plans to raise funds for the Democratic National Campaign. He said its success was assured.

Talmadge repeated Monday night that he didn't expect to attend the Jackson-Jefferson Day dinner here. He said the legal State Democratic Party was not sponsoring the dinner, and he did not plan to "bolt the party" and attend a dinner sponsored by a "rump" committee.

Thompson telephoned from Cordele where he was inspecting a State park to announce he would always respect the decisions of the courts.

Said Thompson: "In my message to the General Assembly on March 21, 1947, I said that I hoped my administration would be one during which law and order prevailed. As usual, I shall respect the decision of the courts."

"I will be a candidate for nomination to the office of Governor in the primary of the Democratic Party of Georgia of which James S. Peters is Chairman. I am mailing a check for $500, which is the usual fee for a candidate for Governor, to Chairman James S. Peters."

Talmadge was in a jubilant mood when reached at his farm at Lovejoy, near Atlanta:

"When Ed Rivers (Georgia's first peach blossoms) of the year at the Hapeville City Park."

Czech Reds Nab Socialist Leaders In Armed Raids on Headquarters

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 23—(UP)—Communist-led police seized the headquarters of the left-wing National Socialist Party and arrested seven moderate political leaders Monday in a series of armed raids which began before dawn.

The raids, and a statement by the Communist-controlled Interior Ministry that the National Socialists were plotting a revolution, climaxed a political crisis in which the Communists appeared to be seeking total power.

At their police, newly armed with carbines and tommy guns, swept through the Capital, Communist officials forbade all foreign travel by Czechs except by permission of the Interior Ministry.

President Eduard Benes, declared Monday night that a "Parliamentary democracy" would be formed. He did not indicate whether he meant a five-party Government similar to the one upset last Friday by the offer of resignations by 12 ministers representing three parties.

The Communists have been demanding formation of a Cabinet representing only the Communists and the Social Democrats. Such a government would be "parliamentary"—the powerful Communists and the relatively weak Social Democrats together would have a majority of Parliament.

The Social Democrats upset police predictions Monday by agreeing to discuss formation of an all-Marxist government. They insisted, however, that any new Cabinet must respect "the principles of parliamentary democracy."

A Social Democrat spokesman denied Monday night his Party had been warned by Communist Premier Klement Gottwald to announce its adherence to the Cabinet by 6:45 p. m. or face the consequences of being a "party of reaction."

A crowd of nearly 10,000 people formed in the street outside Hradcany Palace, Benes' official residence, after dark Monday night to hear the President's comment on the crisis. A five-man delegation went into the Palace to receive the message.

Benes asked the delegation, which consisted of students, to "hold out patiently while we try to put everything in order."

He said he still wanted an all-party coalition.

The Communist-dominated police ordered students who paraded to the Presidential Palace to leave the grounds. They then massed in the Republic Square. Again the police, with their tommy guns pointed menacingly, tried to break up the students. The students stopped them in their tracks by singing the National Anthem. By this time the delegation, which saw Benes, joined the crowd and its leader read the President's message.

Security measures were tightened during the afternoon. Telephone and teleprinter connections with Bratislava, on the frontiers of Austria and Hungary, were cut. It was reported in political quarters that border patrols had been reinforced.

Meanwhile, a Parliamentary Commission rejected a bill for suspending Parliament for the next three months. The Commission's action does not kill the bill, which will be debated in Parliament.

Maj. Gen. William G. Livesay, Chief of the American Military Mission, announced an agreement was reached on purchase of 35,000 British rifles. Greek donations abroad amounting to $1,029,600 will pay for 28,000 rifles and the American Aid Mission will buy the rest. The Americans will furnish the ammunition.

Newsmen were told that he "would not receive anybody."

The Civil Court here announced that Second Secretary Marian Czerniecki was acting as charge d'affaires.

Last Saturday Elmer issued a communiqué to the Dutch press saying he had tendered his resignation to his government. He said "His being a member of the Socialist Party had made difficult normal contact with the Foreign Ministry at Warsaw."

In Warsaw, Foreign Ministry Spokesman Victor Grosz said Elmer had been recalled "for misuse of state funds." He said Elmer had stated in a Dutch broadcast that he resigned because of political differences with the Polish Government.

"A few weeks ago," Grosz said, "he was informed that he was being recalled as of Feb. 15 and was directed to return to Warsaw. Instead he chose to pose as a political martyr."

'Spooky Extortionist' 'Admits' Killing Boy, 13

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Feb. 23—(UP)—Police Chief I. B. Bruce reported Monday night that a 17-year-old had admitted slaying a 13-year-old boy in a bizarre extortion scheme.

The tall, slender murder suspect was termed "spooky" by police who who refused to reveal his name until their investigation was complete. He told police: "I hit him and he rolled into a heavily-wooded draw three blocks north of the city limits."

The body of the missing child, James Fox, son of Eugene Fox, a carpenter, was found on the outskirts of the city, on a mesa leading to the colorful Garden of the Gods.

The body was clad only in a shirt and an undershirt, which had been pulled up over the head. Police said the head had been "bashed in." The youngster's pants and a bloody cap were nearby.

Coroner Henry May said death apparently was caused by "battering with a blunt instrument."

Fox's parents said he disappeared Sunday night. Early Monday, the boy's father received a telephone call telling him to look for a note in the woodshed.

The note said: "I'm telling you that $2,000 in small bills will be in a sack at the corner of 1500 Kiowa St. at 5 o'clock sharp on 24th on Wednesday of this month or your boy will die. Don't wait at the corner. I will know you if you go to the police or hire a private dick. And we also know every move you make. Just remember your child will be at 1500 W. On the back of the note was written: "Just remember, just compare either $2,000 or your child's hair."

Parents, 4 Children Die In Cambridge Blaze

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 23—UP—A family of six perished and seven other persons, including a heroic Catholic priest, were hospitalized Monday after two Cambridge fires that caused more than $150,000 damage to a house and a business block.

The blaze that claimed the lives of the family gained unusual headway because Cambridge firemen already were battling a fire in a North Cambridge business block that caused more than $100,000 loss.

Killed in the blaze that swept the exclusive Brewster Street home of well-to-do Boston broker H. Alan Gregg, Jr., 40, were Gregg, his wife, Ann, 39; Susan, 9; H. Alan, III, 8; Peter, 3, and Thomas, 10 months.

Police said only the father was fatally burned. His wife and children appeared to have perished as the result of smoke inhalation.

Critically injured was a maid, Miss Edna Roper, of Quincy. She was hospitalized with a broken back after leaping from a third-story window to escape the flames.

Also hospitalized were the Rev. James Tierney, a Cambridge fire department chaplain, and Firemen David Ryan and Philip Belanger. All were injured attempting to save the Gregg family from the flames and smoke.

Dixie Looks To S. C. In Bolt--Solon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Other Southern States are looking to South Carolina to lead the way in the civil rights controversy, Sen. James W. Fulbright, Democrat, Arkansas, said in an interview at Charleston, S. C., Monday.

Fulbright's remarks were made as South Carolina's withdrawal from the National Democratic Party.

Asked whether he thought other Southern States would follow South Carolina's lead in a Party bolt, Sen. Fulbright replied, "We did it before, but I hope it won't result in anything like that."

Caution against a break now was urged on Southern Democrats by South Carolina Rep. Rivers, in Washington.

"There is ample time left to us to sever our official connection if such a course becomes justified or inevitable," Rivers said.

Greenwood County's special County convention Saturday recommended action within the Party by means of an unpledged delegation to the national nominating convention.

To date, 48 of the State's 170 legislators have asked the State Party Convention May 19 at Columbia to "reconsider" and "re-evaluate" the State Party relations with the National Party.

Truman Urges Housing Law, Rent Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—(AP)—President Truman Monday asked Congress to put through a housing program which he said would mean 10,000,000 new homes in the next ten years.

Mr. Truman also urged a 12-month extension of rent controls. The present rent law dies Feb. 29, but Republican leaders have agreed to push through a one-month extension. This, they say, will give them time to consider a 12-month extension bill proposed in the Senate.

In his special message to Congress, Mr. Truman said not enough rental homes are being built. In suggesting various types of aid to builders, Mr. Truman said special attention should be given those who plan low-rent homes.

Officially, Congress was celebrating George Washington's birthday. The first President's farewell address was read in the Senate by Sen. McMahon, Democrat, Connecticut, and in the House by Rep. Flannagan, Democrat, Virginia.

But a House Armed Services Subcommittee found time to vote down a proposal to take more women into the Army.

The Senate already has passed a bill to allow the Army's total strength to be two percent women. An amendment to increase that to four percent was defeated.

13,000 WACs In Peacetime Said Sufficient

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—(AP)—The House Armed Services Committee decided Monday that 13,000 women would be enough for a peacetime Women's Army Corps.

The Committee is considering legislation to allow the enlistment and commissioning of women as regulars in the Army, Navy and Air Force. The measure passed the Senate last Summer.

Rep. Lyndon Johnson, Democrat, Texas, suggested the bill will be changed to increase the size of the Women's Army Corps from two percent of the Army's total strength to four percent. The lower figure would permit a corps of about 13,000.

Johnson's amendment failed in a tie vote.

The Committee also heard a plea for an end to race segregation in the Armed Forces. Leslie S. Perry, of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored Persons, read a statement proposing that:

Women should be recruited and used "on the basis of citizenship, rather than color."

Carrier Test Set For Jet Planes

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 23—(AP)—Jet planes which split the air at eight miles a minute—the fastest now with any operational unit of the U. S. fleet—soon will be given a tryout on an aircraft carrier.

This was disclosed Monday after a public demonstration of the SJ-1 fighters, built by North American Aviation, Inc.

"We hope in the near future to try operating these jets from a carrier, probably the Boxer," said Rear Adm. H. J. Harrell, Commander of Fleet Air West Coast. The test, he said, will be made off San Diego.

The SJ-1 fighter is one of several jets under consideration by the Navy for carrier use. It has a speed of more than 550 mph, a range of more than 1,500 miles and a rate of climb of more than a mile a minute.

Congress Pays Respects To George Washington

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—(AP)—Congress paid its respects Monday to George Washington, the first President.

Washington's birth anniversary was Sunday.

In line with custom, both the Senate and House listened to a reading of Washington's farewell address. It was read in the Senate by Sen. McMahon, Democratic, Connecticut, and in the House by Rep. Flannagan, Democrat, Virginia.

A disturbance at the front of the building attracted his attention, Harris related, and when he looked around Wellborn was gone. Harris said he found Wellborn on the stage and escorted him back to the front office.
Stout also testified that Harris indignantly accused Wellborn of having attempted to elude him. At this time, Stout said, Wellborn told of having found the money behind a pipe organ, and began pulling it from his pockets.

matters which are the proper concern of the States.

And he denied that Mr. Truman was striking at the South when he proposed the creation of a Civil Rights Division in the Justice Department. The President's primary intention was to curb "hoodlumism" in industrial disputes, McGrath added.
South Carolina's Gov. Thurmond asked most of the questions in the hour-and-a-half closed session.
In perhaps the most important of them, he asked if McGrath would use his influence "to have the highly controversial civil rights legislation, which tends to divide our people, withdrawn from consideration by the Congress."
"No," McGrath replied.
The other "payoff" question was whether the Chairman would back a return to the rule whereby the selection of the Party's candidates for President and Vice President would require a two-thirds vote at the National Convention.
McGrath said he would not support this. He said it would be "a step backwards" for the Party, which since 1936 has required only a majority vote.
McGrath said he regretted "the events that have brought us to this situation within our Party."
He said he and other members of the National Committee "appreciate the great loyalty our Party has had from the Southern States through the years."
"I don't take the attitude that they are with us anyway and so the 'L' with them," he said, adding:
"I just hope that somehow in our deliberations as time goes on, and when we weigh specific proposals that come before Congress, we will have a happy reunion in the not too distant future."
The Governors charged that Mr. Truman's program was "un-constitutional" and "may well sound the death knell of local self-government."
They demanded that McGrath strive to keep out of the 1948 Democratic platform the very proposals that the President has put before Congress—Federal laws outlawing, among other things, poll tax and separation of white persons and Negroes in interstate travel.
Presenting their demands in the form of six typewritten questions, the Governors did not mention the clamor for secession.
With Cherry were Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, of South Carolina; Beauford H. Jester, of Texas; and Ben T. Laney, of Arkansas. They were joined later by Gov. W. Preston Lange, Jr., of Maryland.
The two-thirds rule which they want restored was abandoned at Franklin D. Roosevelt's instigation. The rule requires that a candidate must have two-thirds of the 1,234 convention votes before he can be nominated.
At present a candidate can be nominated by a simple majority vote.

Who Was in the Woodpile?

The State Pardon and Parole Board has done an outstanding job.

That's why its mistakes are so noticeable.

At least once or twice annually, in the five years since it was set up to remove clemency powers from political administration, the Board's work has been commended editorially by The Atlanta Constitution.

That's why we do not hesitate to criticize it when the need arises.

And, in commuting the death sentence of Lingo Morris, Macon bus driver convicted of poisoning his wife, the Board has invited suspicion and condemnation to an unprecedented degree.

"Morris was convicted of deliberately killing his wife and leaving two little boys motherless in order to enjoy further prosecutions of his illicit relations with another woman," declared Sol. Gen. Charles H. Garrett, of Bibb Superior Court, when informed of the Board's 2-to-1 decision, Chairman Everett dissenting, to commute Morris' sentence.

"All of the courts, including the Supreme Court of the United States, have conclusively determined that he was properly convicted and sentenced to death. The State Pardon and Parole Board has twice denied clemency in this case upon two separate applications, wherein Morris was represented by able counsel.

"Now, after the courts have finally determined all issues in the case, the Board of Pardons and Paroles reverses all decisions of the courts and reverses two decisions of the Board itself, without any new application for clemency and without opportunity for representatives of the people to be heard.

"It seems that the people of Georgia ought to do something about this super court, with power to overrule the Supreme Court of the United States, and with the privilege of reversing itself without reason and without notice to anybody."

The Atlanta Constitution still believes that clemency can best be administered by a nonpolitical, autonomous agency such as the present Board of Pardons and Paroles.

But every time the Board arbitrarily reverses the courts set up to determine guilt and set sentences, it weakens its position in the eyes of the public and jeopardizes its chances of continuation.

Coming so soon after—and giving off the same bad odor as—the release of the notorious Charlie Dodds, the Morris incident makes it increasingly difficult for those of us inclined to do so to defend the Pardon and Parole Board.

A Resignation Wouldn't Solve Anything!

Burt Wellborn says he will not resign as manager of the Municipal Auditorium.

We are glad.

Mr. Wellborn is accused of charges of such a serious nature that his resignation and the subsequent hushing-up of the whole affair would only invite future trouble.

Mr. Wellborn should be exonerated and retained . . . or indicted and tried.

Let Mr. Wellborn, for his own sake as well as the City's, be either convicted or acquitted publicly.

The Soviets and Palestine

The Palestine Commission has requested armed aid in discharging its duty in Palestine.

There is no international police force available.

This is due to the fact the military staffs have not been able to agree upon the sort of military force provided for by the charter.

This failure is chiefly due to the fact that the Soviet Union has refused even to discuss transfer of any of its units to a common command.

Yet, in the General Assembly, the Soviets voted for the partition of Palestine. Having so voted they lead in making it impossible for the United Nations to carry out its decision. It is a typical Soviet movement of delay and disorder.

The United Nations is being defied by the Grand Mufti of Palestine, aided by the Arab states of Syria, Lebanon, Trans-Jordan and, less openly, by Egypt.

We have the fantastic situation whereby the British will not allow arms to go to the Haganah, which is the army of defense raised by the Zionists in Palestine, but does allow arms to go to the Arabs in Palestine.

An international police force must be created and sent to Palestine or the United Nations will fail to enforce its first great international decision, and its end will be in sight. The United States cannot, and should not, send troops. Nor should any nation act alone. It is a United Nations matter and there should be action without Russia if she will not join.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

Neglect of Stone Mountain

Editor Constitution: As you know, Feb. 15 was one of those rare, warm, sunny days in mid-Winter, uncharacteristic of February weather here in Georgia. To tempting to stay indoors after 10 days of rain, sleet, snow and ice. I drove with two members of my family out to the mountain. I wanted to enjoy this awe-inspiring spectacle once more. Just to look at one of the seven wonders of the world. Something that only God can give us.

The mountain itself was still something beautiful to look at. But the surroundings were a sorry scene. A scene of desolation and neglect. Most conspicuous were last year's tall weeds, a rusty, broken-down fence and a few dilapidated sheds. What was once a road to the studio opposite the unfinished carving on the mountain is now a worn-out strip of asphalt full of holes.

And to add insult to injury, high up on the mountainside and just below the abandoned carving some half-educated idiot has written with chalk or paint, "To Hell With Avondale." As I sat there in my car I saw a visitor from Tennessee almost turn his car over trying to get out of a ditch and get back on the old pavement. We saw automobiles from Texas, Florida, Pennsylvania, Indiana, South Carolina, Washington State, Washington, D. C., New York, Virginia, Illinois and Alabama.

How nice it would be if all these visitors we saw could return to their homes in distant cities and tell their friends who contemplate a trip through Georgia to be sure and go out to Stone Mountain, and say to them, "It's so beautiful out there." What they tell them now (and they should) is, "If you are going through Georgia and go out to Stone Mountain, by all means leave your car in Atlanta and go out there in a Jeep."

Just recently the State of Georgia bought 'Jelly' Island. It cost us more than half a million dollars, yet there are thousands of families who are taxpayers, and will never be financially able to make the long trip from this part of Georgia down there.

I think the State should take over Stone Mountain and buy the necessary amount of land around its base and develop it into a State Park. The unfinished carving when completed would be a rare

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 200 words and must be signed, although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned.

spectacle itself, aside from the grandeur of the mountain. A few thousand dollars spent by the State or Federal Government would bring untold hours of healthful and enjoyable recreation to the rich and poor alike. It would also bring many compliments to our fair State which we need and should welcome.

HENRY O. HAMBRICK, Atlanta.

Civil Rights Stand

Editor Constitution: In Wednesday's Constitution I was quoted in an Associated Press dispatch at an Alabama meeting of the Alabama Division of the Southern National Council on Feb. 17 that in the civil rights controversy "laws to force the South's hand would only cause ill will and conflict between the races."

Actually, the Council's position is that, in the absence of responsible undertaking by the South to enforce itself the fundamental civil rights of its people, Federal legislation will be administered with poor success. What we would like to see is Southern determination to take up full State responsibilities. If the South just fuses, and doesn't do its own duty, the Nation must act as best it can. But we are all better off if the South will, on its own, implement the basic civil rights in protection of person and citizenship and in opportunity which the Nation and the world expect of us.

GEORGE S. MITCHELL, Executive Director.

A Suggestion

Editor Constitution: The discussion of the matter of the evolution of man which has been in your paper recently, reached a climax, to me, with the letter by the Reverend Doctor J. L. Steele. I think it would be wise for Doctor Steele and all who are interested in the topic to read a very interesting and enlightening book, "Human Dignity" by Le Comte du Nolly.

FRANK H. BENNING, Atlanta.

Student Exchange

Editor Constitution: Little publicity has been given the so-called "Fullbright Act" (Public Law 584).

Under this Act foreign governments may choose to pay the United States for surplus war goods by offering our young people educational training in their countries instead of paying us in cash or in kind (manufactured goods, etc.).

Arrangements have been completed with two nations to date, China and Burma. Arrangements are pending with Australia, Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Egypt, Finland, France, Greece, Hungary, Iran, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Philippines, Siam, Turkey and the United Kingdom. (Possibilities also exist with India and Pakistan).

All study must be on the college level and in the graduate field for the first several years. In some instances students may have their transportation paid as well as educational expenses. Veterans of World War II are eligible, but probably will not be allowed to draw full benefits from both programs.

The program has only just started and will run for several years—possibly a decade or more. Georgians interested may write the Department of State, Division of International Exchange of Persons, Washington, D. C. for details.

'Rare Insight'

Editor Constitution: In your column of Feb. 11 called "Evolution is a Part of Life" I want to sincerely say that you have an insight that comes rarely in human beings.

Being an ordinary human being I was affected to the point of writing you. After reading your column for over 10 years I feel a depth of gratitude, what you express in words and thought has always impressed me. Preachers have a habit of confusing an issue, and although religion has a definite part in my life any my children I feel that logical thinking as you have so ably illustrated in your article is certainly more important to thinking than much of the preaching in the world.

Scrambled Eggs, With Poems?

A woman psychologist in Cleveland has suggested that women get their men started off each day in the right frame of mind by reciting them a poem at breakfast.

I wish to enter a demurrer. The suggestion is fraught with danger. Suppose the happy housewife begins: "Drink to me only with thine eyes—" And the husband interrupts to say: "I will if you make any more coffee like this." This would get the morning off to a poor start and the children would trudge off to school with a very low opinion indeed of the old folks at home.

Again Or, she takes a line or so from our master, Shakespeare, and begins with a happy Spring garden poem: "I know a bank where the wild thyme blows. Where ox-lips, and the nodding violet grows . . ." And he puts down his paper and says: "That reminds me, you are overdrawn at the bank and don't have oxtail soup at dinner for another week or so."

What a man wants most for his breakfast is the morning paper, a good cup of coffee, a full-size glass of orange juice, and eggs that taste like victuals, and not like cold storage paste. He does not care to have eggs scrambled with them.

Music I know a father whose attractive and intelligent young daughter is at the stage in life where the ballad singers, such as a man named Perry Como and another named Frank Sinatra, are important.

Every morning, before breakfast, she loads up a record changer with records of these crooners, and they play all through breakfast. Their dulcet moaning fills the house. The father is living proof that music does not charm the savage breast. All the way downtown, after listening to these plaintive tunes, he drives his car with great vigor, looking here and there, apparently hoping that Perry Como will jaywalk in front of him and give him a chance to run him down. A black mood is upon him and his eggs fight with the bacon and there is no evidence at all of any soothing effect of music poured into his ears during breakfast.

Danger The thought of the nation's wives reciting poems at breakfast is one of the most alarming thoughts which 1948 has produced. There are poor poets as well as poor cooks. The wife whose coffee tastes as if it had been strained through a woolen sock would be pretty sure to add insult to injury by reading from Eddie Guest or Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

What the American male chiefly needs to send him away from the breakfast table happy is a good cup of coffee. The lamentable fact is that much of the coffee on the market today seems to have very little coffee in it. It is weaker than Ed Flynn's organization in the Bronx. But, one can shop around and find coffee which has character. After that, one just needs to use enough coffee. A heaping tablespoon for each cup and one over extra for flavor, is almost a sure-fire guarantee against poor coffee . . . if one begins with it. A cup of coffee can be like a poem.

As for the lady psychologist's other ideas, that rugs be beaten to Tchaikovsky's compositions; the floor waxed to Chopin's nocturnes, and the baking done to Bach, I do not know. I am an expert only on what will soothe at breakfast. So, with this I do not quarrel. But poetry is not the breakfast answer, as I can prove: "Poems limp on even legs. O'er burnt toast and addled eggs."

Good coffee, without mud in it, and proper victuals satisfy and soothe the inner man at breakfast much better than poems. Let the lady psychologist try again.

JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

A Philadelphia Day Dream

Ralph T. Jones, whose column usually appears in this space, is ill. He expects to resume his column in a few days.

WASHINGTON—The scene is the squalid chaos of the Republican convention at Philadelphia. The time is the moment when the deadlock becomes final between Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Sen. Robert A. Taft. Suddenly the name of Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg is placed before the convention.

Gov. Harold Stassen, already aware that he cannot make the grade himself, takes his place at the head of the Vandenberg procession. On the next ballot, the Stassen delegates, the Michigan delegates, and strong elements of the Pennsylvania, New England and Western delegations are already riding high on the Vandenberg bandwagon. On the ballot following, Vandenberg receives the Republican nomination for the Presidency.

The foregoing is the extremely practical day dream of a number of astute and seasoned players of the great game of politics. These day dreamers, to be sure, conspicuously do not include Sen. Vandenberg himself. He is still not convinced in any draftsmen to remember that the only Republican now capable of taking another look at the truth of the Senator's own maxim, that no Presidential candidate has ever been drafted who did not connive in the draft.

The first of these, and the most important, is the existence of the day dreamers aforesaid. There is a very simple reason why a genuine draft is so difficult. A draft movement, however spontaneous, may seem on the surface to require careful advance preparation. For this preparation, there must be organization. Unless the prospective draftee is an accomplice, the work of organization and preparation is ordinarily impossible.

In Sen. Vandenberg's case, however, this rule emphatically does not apply. The day dreamers include the Michigan National Committee, Arthur Summerfield, a number of other leaders of the Michigan organization, and more than one key figure in other States. It is a fair practice that they will have completed the necessary minimum of organization and preparation by the time the Republicans assemble for their quadrennial bean feast and delegate rodeo.

No Encouragement The day dreamers are doing their day dream. They are dreaming without encouragement from their candidate. He has done more than the Republican now. Some time ago, he made a public request to the men of his home State to line up behind some other candidate. Then Gov. Kim Sigler and other Michigan chieftains declared their determination, at a recent Michigan meeting, to take a Vandenberg delegation to Philadelphia all the same. After this episode, Vandenberg let it be known that if the State convention seemed likely to name Vandenberg delegates, he would restate his former request in a manner that could not be misunderstood.

The chances are, therefore, that the Michigan delegates will either divide between Taft, Dewey and other candidates on early ballots, or will propose Gov. Sigler as the State's favorite son. This does not distress the day dreamers, however. Indeed, it helps them. The draft will be all the more real.

What encourages the day dreamers even more is the shrewd calculation they have made concerning Gov. Stassen. As a Presidential candidate in his own right, Stassen is now forging handsomely ahead. Yet the odds are still heavily against him. In the event of a Taft-Dewey deadlock, Stassen is unlikely to swing to either Dewey or Taft; since he has done the equivalent of slapping the face of the former and punching the chin of the latter.

But on Lincoln Day, in a speech in Pennsylvania, Stassen went out of his way to remark that the only Republican now capable of taking the great emancipator was Sen. Vandenberg. This clearly suggests that if he cannot get the prize himself, Stassen would regard a Vandenberg-Stassen ticket as the next best thing.

Obstacle Altogether, always supposing that a Dewey-Taft deadlock develops (for there can be no draft without a deadlock), there is one real obstacle to the day dream. That obstacle is the Senator himself. The reports as to his health are utterly unfounded. He is often tired, because of a work schedule that would kill most men of 35, whereas he is exactly the same age as President Truman. But his doctors have now found that he is in better condition physically than almost any other man of his age.

The Senator is an obstacle, rather, because he seems ready to prevent a draft movement, by active personal intervention, if massive opposition develops from the more antiquated Republican State organizations. Thus far, the Senator has been beyond attack, in stating that he is not a candidate, but that no one can reject a draft. But it is hard to see how he can defend the position of giving the worst elements in the Republican Party a power of veto over the mass of the party's will. This does not make sense.

The Deep South in High Dudgeon

A Committee of Southern Governors called at the White House yesterday, ostensibly for the purpose of reopening diplomatic relations with the United States.

They were displeased to find that President Truman, who apparently had received word of their coming, was in the Virgin Islands. . . . That wasn't where they wanted to tell him to go.

The President reportedly is amazed at Southern indignation over his recent Civil Rights proposals. He thought all that was settled at Appomattox.

When it comes to racial matters, however, many suspect that the race in which Mr. Truman has the most genuine interest is the one culminating in November.

He's trying to out-Wallace Henry as well as out-Taft Robert . . . and finding out you can't play both ends without catching it in the middle.

Meanwhile, the Solid South is far from satisfied. If it doesn't bolt the party this year it won't be for lack of indignation so much as of a place to go.

In politics, loyalty is its own reward . . . but doubt pays off in concessions.

The Supreme Screwball of All Time

I would suggest that stock brokers skip this story of Jacques Lebaudy. It might do bad things to their egos.

Jacques was probably the supreme screwball of all time. Shortly after he was born, he was nicknamed "Le Petit Suerier," or "The Little Sugar Bowl," which was natural enough, seeing as how his pop was Jules Lebaudy, the French sugar king.

By the time the tot was old enough to play with his solid gold blocks, his parents knew he was as bawdy as a Rio breeze. Nevertheless, when Jacques was 21, he was handed the nice, untidy sum of five million bucks. The European Nutsy Fagan immediately put both his heads together and decided to become a king. Jimmy Langerman, an American soldier of fortune, informed Jacques there was a 185-mile strip of sandy coast in West Africa which no nation had ever claimed.

The ready-made regent bought himself a second-hand throne for 75 grand, and blew in another 40 for a crown with red stones. Then he acquired a yacht and an empress, Marie de Loche Delliery, a 16-year-old Parisian actress whom he selected because her press agent claimed she was a countess.

Accompanied by 20 sailors armed with champagne bottles and cans of pate de foie gras, Jacques landed in Africa. The throne was set up on the beach, and Le Suerier pulled the crown over his ears and proclaimed himself Jacques I, Emperor of the Sahara.

Twenty minutes later, his reign ended. Three touchy Arab tribesmen fired a couple of inaccurate bullets in the direction of the monarch. Jacques and his entourage scrambled back on the yacht, leaving most of the pate de foie gras behind.

In Paris, Lebaudy registered at a hotel as Jacques I, Emperor of the Sahara. The class-conscious manager gave him the heave-ho.

Piqued, Jacques moved himself and his Empress to New York. The old Waldorf-Astoria didn't mind how he signed the register, but it did mind when he started sending bellboys down to the United States Subtreasury Building to ask for a lend of the Government's money-counting machines. And it minded even more the front-page story of its guest's attempt to slip the President of the United States a satchel full of gold in exchange for one of the Philippine Islands.

In 1913, Lebaudy walked into the New York Public Library, followed by two retainers lugging a heavy trunk. He pulled some letters out of his pocket, got up on the trunk and began dictating in a loud voice. Some attendants with muscles escorted the Emperor to the door, but Jacques insisted on leaving the trunk behind. When it was opened months later by court order, it was found to contain $200,000 in negotiable securities.

All this time, Lebaudy had been buying and selling stocks like crazy. And his methods were the luncheon jokes of Wall Street. To begin with, he refused to talk to brokers except in moving taxicabs. He would only buy stock in companies where the President wore a beard. If the pictures on the engraved certificates didn't appeal to him, he immediately sold them. One year he traded only on days with an "R" in them; the following year only on days when the wind was blowing from the South.

When World War I came along, the Emperor demoted himself to General and decided to raise a private army consisting entirely of cavalry. He Can Highway Board Be Freed of Politics?

(Thomaston Times)

Much has been said and written recently about taking the Georgia Highway Department out of politics, but it can't be done. As much as this miracle is desired it is asking the impossible in Georgia especially. The Thomaston Times joins other newspapers in asking for such a miracle but it is sort of asking for the moon or something as far away. No sir, the Georgia Highway Department will always be in politics. Of the various plans advanced for taking the Highway Department out of politics the one given by Acting Gov. Thompson comes nearest getting it out of politics than the others. He would have the Legislature recommend three men from each Congressional District from which the Governor would choose one man to be confirmed by the Legislature. The men, so chosen would constitute the Highway Board.

Whether chosen by the Governor, the Legislature or directly by the people the Highway Board will be a political one just as any other section of the State Government. The Highway Department handles too much money to be divorced from politics. A political minded Governor will always be able to find a way to control the spending of this money for political purposes.

As we said in the beginning it would be highly desirable to have the road and bridge money spending taken out of politics in Georgia but we have faint hopes of this ever coming true.

Dr. Hoppy Foaled Them for Years

My friend, Mr. Kenneth Lewis, the curator of Fernbank, the children's animal museum out at 849 Clifton Rd., N. E., calls on the telephone last night to say that though I may be an authority on felines and their ways, when it comes to rabbits I do not know enough to come in out of the rain.

What happens, it seems, is this. When it begins to appear that my white rabbit, Dr. Hoppy, is getting a little stiff in the joints, and is in grave danger of finally losing a foot race to that bulldog down the street, we take him out to Fernbank so that he will have a good home and will be able to live to a ripe old age in safety.

Mr. Lewis does not question our report that Dr. Hoppy is a gentleman rabbit, so he takes him and drops him into a pen with other gentleman rabbits, a sort of rabbit bachelors' club, where it is thought that he will find himself friends and settle down to live in peace and content. Dr. Hoppy finds himself a friend, all right, but strangely, it turns out that in all the years I have known Dr. Hoppy I have been laboring under one basic delusion about him. Dr. Hoppy was not a gentleman rabbit at all, but a lady rabbit. And he is a lady rabbit she is—now the proud mams of two small sons, or maybe daughters, a brown one and a black one, which the children out at Fernbank have named Blackie and Brownie, which are two good safe names for rabbits.

I am gratified to learn that Blackie and Brownie are very popular with the other inhabitants of Fernbank and that Dr. Hoppy, who I suppose henceforth must be known as Mrs. Hoppy, is receiving the congratulations of all of her friends, including the two black crows, Mike and Ike, who make their residence at Fernbank. In fact, Mike and Ike, the two crows, have been calling on Mrs. Hoppy lately and taking the children out for a stroll. They seize them by the scruff of the neck and walk about the yard with them, showing them off to the other inhabitants, visiting the pens where reside Melissa, the mink, and Chanel No. 5 and Evening in Paris, the two skunks, and all the other little people who live at Fernbank, making a great fuss over them.

I am also gratified to learn that Dr. Hoppy is turning out to be a very good mother. She is feeding her own children, and they did not even have to be put on the formula which the Lewises not only feed their son Kal, age 10 months, but also is at the moment feeding three other infants, Melissa the Mink's small son and a baby flying squirrel and a baby gray squirrel who have not yet been named.

I must go out to Fernbank and see Dr. Hoppy sometime soon and carry him—I mean her—a small potted plant, or some such gift. I am a little angry at being deceived, but I suppose I should appreciate the fact that he—I mean she—waited until she had left my bed and board before she decided to reveal the fact that she had been a lady all the time.

FRED OTHMAN

George Washington Without a Shirt

WASHINGTON—Let us clean up the rest of the cherry pie, fellow patriots, and consider my annual tale of George Washington without a shirt.

I have checked as usual at this time of year and regret to report that the Father of His Country looks as goosely as ever, with a sheet around his middle, a laurel wreath on his brow, and his bare toes sticking in the breeze. Only change is that he's a little dustier. All ten feet and six inches of him, mostly naked, in white marble.

Congress' sorriest experience with the arts began in 1852, when the lawmakers slipped Herbert Greenough, the celebrated Boston sculptor, $5,000 to sculpt a heroic statue of Washington to decorate the Capitol lawn. Herbert took the money to Florence, Italy, where he emerged six years later with his 20-ton statue securely packed in a wooden box.

Getting same to the seaport meant that he had to chop down all the olive trees on the left side of the road from Florence to Leghorn. This, plus some other incidental expense, cost Congress $8,311.50.

The engineers at Leghorn started to hoist the statue onto a boat. But the rope broke. George Washington crashed through the hull and sank in the mud. The ship settled on top of him. Insurance took care of this, without cost to the taxpayers. The U. S. Navy sent a battleship to Italy, where the sailors fished Washington out of the mud.

You must remember that he was contained in a whopping big box. The ship docked in New York, but the railroad tunnels between there and here weren't big enough for him to squeeze through. The Navy took him to New Orleans and forwarded him to Washington via devious routes without tunnels.

By now the enterprise had cost $26,000 and some odd cents. Congress appropriated $2,000 more for a base to hold the statue, and the great day of unveiling came in 1861. The Navy Band tooted, the lawmakers made speeches, the Speaker of the House pulled the string, and good-gosh-amighty!

There was George Washington twice as big as his bath, clad as a Roman Senator on the way to his bath. His chest muscles rippled in the sun.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Tolerance Leaders Are So Intolerant

No fair-minded bigot of the tolerance movement could ask me to submit to further imposition, indeed persecution, without the privilege of a little reaction. As a youth, I knew others of my age who were forced on religion, both doctrine and the physical rigors of rote and ritual, and, therefore, upon escape from childhood's thrall, embraced heresy with a carnal joy. One of them, a fugitive from an austere academy on the outskirts of Chicago, when last I saw him was living sedately and respectably in the sin of apostasy in Washington and teaching his children to regard the clergy as spiritual chiropractors, at best, and, on the average, no better than so many Caribbean voodoo gurus, selling boss-fix powder to tree-dwelling parishioners with thumbs on their feet.

Saintly men in holy orders have passed signs at his door and undoubtedly have taken the liberty of breathing incantations for the innocent souls of his bairns, denied access to the word through their own fault. But he mocks them with outrageous courtesy. The excesses which drove him to this horrible revenge I have often heard, God forgive me that I didn't hit him with a bottle or, anyway, call a curse to put myself on record. But I drop a veil, indeed, an iron curtain.

I find myself almost as sorely tried in another respect.

I am not clearly aware how long it has been since I was allowed the privilege, nay the intellectual and constitutional right, to roll my own ideas and enjoy them on such topics as European and American politics, the relations of racial and religious minorities with the majorities, the wisdom and dignity of people and the patriotism of Charles A. Lindbergh, Gerald L. K. Smith, Burton K. Wheeler and the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin.

There is only one permissible stand on any of these subjects and that is the stand of several presumptuous religious groups, including some monstrous compromises between natural theological enemies and a great roster of councils, alliances, federations and congresses. That stand is preached on Sunday nights by our great modern Henry Ward Beecher, the Messrs. Winchell and Pearson, and on other nights and at other times by radio and from the rostrum of the town hall and high school auditorium by a multitude of other evangelists of similar mind and fury. They include, of course, Eleanor Roosevelt, Frank Sinatra, Harry S. Truman, William S. Gailmore, otherwise Margolis, a certain Frank Kingdom, somehow known as Doctor, Louis Adamic, Quentin Reynolds, Walter Feuchtwanger, of Hollywood, sometimes called Wanger, and Danny Kaye. They include the Rev. Stephen S. Wise and other noted Zionists who would put me in a very bad light for dissenting from their political conclusions, to say nothing of my disavowing their political premises.

These wise counselors are so confident in their own convictions and so impatient of the criminal depravity, to put it nicely, of all who permit a shadow of doubt to darken their brows, that they have knoused in at least one and I may assume in certain other Americans a perverse determination to think for themselves, to re-examine many hastily and carelessly accepted political and social axioms, and to insist on a hearing for the opposition in rebuttal.

Henry L. Menckens, a heretic but in some respects a rather worth-while fellow, observed some time ago that the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith was, in his opinion, the greatest American orator of our time. My opinion of oratory is like my opinion of toe-dancers and if I were let alone I should never desire to endure the gusts of the Rev. Smith.

Tell me that I can't hear him, however; lay it down to me that I may hear him only at risk of the wrath of these kidneys and my curiosity becomes a fierce determination. I have never met him, I do not know what he preaches. I have heard gossip, possibly slanderous, that he liked Hitler. If this last be true, his crime was no worse and probably was more casual and less binding than the spiritual association between some other pundits of the established politico-social and racial faith and Joseph Stalin. Moreover, Hitler, I take it, dead, and to those who insist on proof from me my rejoinder must be a demand for equally heartening assurance of Roosevelt's death. So, as I assume, Hitler is dead, but Stalin is not and Stalin thus remains at this hour a moral and military menace to my country.

Nevertheless, I have been put upon so long and so contentedly that I am now driven to new counsel. I discover that I never did hear Lindbergh through, that I know Smith only by the angry opinions of his enemies, surely no ground for condemnation, and that former Sen. Wheeler was judged, tried, prosecuted and condemned by persons who were infuriated because they wanted this country to go to war against Hitler and Wheeler thought it wasn't necessary. Wheeler is neither a crook nor a monster.

I took a more intelligent interest in Father Coughlin when he was active and his selection of him as a political and, even, a religious figure, was based on associations, actions and practices which were known to me.

Yet even in this case, I would take a review because I have a deep conviction that most of those who have damned all these men and many others are, themselves, worse. They have long had a monopoly not only of the means of expression but of the thinking of the people. By sheer power of sound and emotional clamor, these dissenters were driven out of the forum and stoned down the road.

I close with one example, Truman's political move against segregation.

In the White House, Franklin D. Roosevelt had scores of employees. The only Negroes were menials. In Warm Springs, Ga., he sold a piece of property with a proviso in the contract, written there by Roosevelt, forbidding the sale of that land to or its use by any person of Negro blood. (Need record 25, page 215, Meriwether County, Georgia.)

Truman, naturally, idolized Roosevelt as a political moosehead in the trophy hall of the Democratic party on Jefferson-Jackson Day.

He plumped against discrimination and segregation only to carry New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Indianapolis, with their Negro balance of power, next Fall. He knew that the Southern Democrats wouldn't go Republican and that the Republicans wouldn't dare invite them.

Now am I to agree with Truman, knowing him to be a hypocrite, or hadn't I better stay honest the rest of my life and either condemn discrimination on decent grounds or have the decency to accept it.

THE QUESTION: Should the South bolt the Democratic party?

THE ANSWERS:

JOHN M. RHODES, Philadelphia, Pa., Ga. Tech graduate, jet propulsion engineer—Very definitely not. The South has always gotten more from the Government than its proportionate wealth demands because of its solid political affiliation. If the vote were split, the Northern and Midwestern sections of the two parties would then be in position to demand and obtain a major portion of the governmental and political power.

MARY M. CUNNINGHAM, 512 Second Ave., Decatur, accounts clerk—I think the people should vote for the man who's running rather than the party. Where important issues are involved, the South should vote the way most advantageous to its States. We should vote the way our consciences and heritage guide us.

MRS. FRED PITMAN, 310 Ponce de Leon, N. E., cashier-housewife—No, I don't believe in always voting the Democratic ticket just because I'm a Southerner. I feel that if a person is against President Truman's civil rights program, he should vote for whom he thinks would make a better President, regardless of party connection.

ED SMITH, Univ. of Fla., student—I don't think the South's strong enough to go against the party. The only complaint I have against Truman's policy is his backing of anti-Jim Crow legislation. I'm in agreement with the anti-lynch and anti-poll tax laws because they would lift the South's position as a section. I think the anti-Jim Crow law would foster trouble and increase friction between the two races.

LEE WARREN SPANOGLE, 104 14th St., N. E., architectural draftsman—I think that the South has its own feelings and perhaps should form its own party. If it remains with the Democratic party, it would only be compromising and not voting for what the people really want. However, if the South becomes an independent party, it may not be strong enough to carry much weight nationally.

RALPH C. STAFFINS, 1679 De Foor Ave., N. W., legal investigator—I think the South should vote for measures which would benefit the South, and that's all. The South should stick to its own traditions and if the Democratic party has deserted her, the South should have her own party to sustain her own tradition.

Kinsey Sex Survey Approved

PRINCETON, N. J.—Dr. A. C. Kinsey's much-talked-about report on human sex behavior has won widespread approval from the American people. By a ratio of 5 to 1. Those with opinions vote that it is a good thing, rather than a bad thing, to have this information on sex available.

To test the reaction of the country toward this sort of study, the Institute polled a cross-section from coast to coast on two questions.

All persons in the poll, whether they had heard about the Kinsey report or not, were then asked this question:

"Dr. A. C. Kinsey has completed a nine-year study on the sex behavior of males in this country. Do you think it is a good thing or a bad thing to have this information on sex available?"

The survey also has much more support from young people—those under 30 years of age—than from the older age groups.

The survey found that both Protestants and Catholics in the population express approval of the

Urges Cure Of Vandalism

Charging that recent cases of youthful vandalism reflected on the entire county, the DeKalb Grand Jury Monday urged improved recreational facilities for youths and allocation of more funds to meet welfare needs.

In special presentations, the Grand Jury reiterated "prevention of crime is more important than punishment."

The presentments censured the Georgia Bureau of Investigation for alleged failure to provide requested assistance in county investigation of automobile thefts. The jurors praised the work of DeKalb officers in the probes. The County employed two special investigators, C. L. Huxford and H. K. Gargis, Jr., to work with DeKalb Det. Johnny Jones. The Grand Jury said the investigation of auto thefts had resulted in indictments of Wilson Smith, Harry Sappington and Lamar Tench.

LOUELLA PARSONS REPORTS:

Madeleine, Fred Teamed In 'An Innocent Affair'

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.—(INS)—Pardon my girlish persistence in announcing movie plans for Madeleine Carroll, but at last it is definite now what she will do.

Madeleine comes here March 8 to start "An Innocent Affair" for James Nasser, owner of General Service Studios and many theaters.

After reading script after script, the blonde beauty, who hasn't made a film since before the war, liked best this original by Lew Breslau and Joseph Hoffman. Or maybe it was the prospect of co-starring with her old Paramount pal, Fred MacMurray, which helped her to make up her mind. Yes, Fred is her co-star with Lloyd Bacon doing the directing.

The Horatio Alger movie of all time should be the life story of Gene Autry, which goes on the screen this Summer. Gene, whose parents were poor dirt farmers in Texas, literally pulled himself up by his own boot straps, to be the most beloved Western hero on the screen.

Gene plans to spend $1,000,000 on his own life story, which he is making in color, with his partner, Armand Schaefer.

Dixie and Bing Crosby returned today from their vacation in Elko, Nevada, where they were filming "The Cowboy and the Lady."

Sounds very imposing, this "Radio Cavalcade," which will be made by Jerrold Brand for Columbia.

'Censorship' On Wallace Is Denounced

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—A House Committee's decision to ban newsmen and radio men when Henry A. Wallace speaks the Marshall Plan Tuesday was denounced by the Wallace camp Monday as "outrageous censorship."

Wallace is to appear before the Foreign Affairs Committee Tuesday to testify against the plan for European recovery. The Committee decreed last week that no radio, newsmen or television apparatus would be allowed during the final week of hearings—this week.

The explanation by Committee members was that operation of these facilities in a crowded hearing room was troublesome and interfered with the Committee work.

C. B. Baldwin, who is managing Wallace's Third Party campaign for the presidency, asked in a statement:

"Is the . . . Committee afraid to let the American people know the real story on the European recovery program?"

He said the Committee could work out arrangements that would not interfere with proceedings and added:

"The drastic and wholly unnecessary ban clearly indicates the Committee simply does not want to permit Mr. Wallace's point of view on the Marshall Plan to reach a vast segment of the American people."

"This is an outrageous act of censorship."

'Commies' Ask Ga. To Spare 3

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(UP)—The Communist Party of America Monday called on President Truman and Acting Governor E. Thompson, of Georgia, to revoke immediately the death sentence of a Georgia Negro woman and her two sons.

The Communist letter called for prompt action in the case as evidence that the President has "not surrendered completely to the 1948 Southern secessionists conspiracy."

Rosa Lee Ingram and her two sons, Wallace, 15, and Sammy, 13, were sentenced to death by an all-white jury on Feb. 27 after conviction in the killing of a white farmer, John Stratford, in a dispute over pigs which strayed onto Stratford's land. Arguments will be held March 6 on a motion for a new trial.

"I TRUSTED HER BUT . . ."—Charles J. Hurst (right), blind since babyhood, is telling Sol. Gen. Paul Webb how his landlady allegedly took $2,000 which he gave her to put in the bank for him. Webb will seek a larceny-after-trust indictment against the woman today.

$2,000 SHORT, TELLS JURORS

Blind Man Charges Woman Stole Savings

A blind man who said he liked his landlady and would have been happy to lend her money Monday asked the Fulton County Grand Jury to indict her for stealing his savings, totaling $2,000.

Charles J. Hurst, 41, an employee of the State Vocational Rehabilitation Service, complained to Sol. Gen. Paul Webb that he had trusted his landlady to do his banking for him and at the end of a three-and-a-half-year period she checked up $2,000 short.

"I might not have found it out," Hurst said, "but I promised to lend a friend of mine some money for an operation—and when I asked for my pass book she started crying and told me she had been using my money."

Hurst said he gave his landlady, operator of a boarding house for men, his check to deposit almost weekly for about three years. He said he had been working as a rivet sorter in the aircraft defense branch of Firestone at the time.

"She offered to do my banking for me when she did hers and I gave the bank verbal instructions to allow her to withdraw money for me if I ever needed it," Hurst added. "I never needed it—but she did."

Hurst said his landlady told him she used the money to pay on her home. Sol. Webb said he would ask the jury to indict the woman on a charge of larceny after trust.

After Honeymoon Rockefeller Back To Earn Living

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(INS)—Winthrop Rockefeller, home from his honeymoon with the former "Bobby" Sears, will grab his pick and shovel Tuesday and settle down to the serious business of earning full-length mink coats, diamond doo-dads and sirlin steaks for his Cinderella bride.

At 9 a. m. Tuesday, or a reasonable facsimile thereof, young Rockefeller will be back at his desk at the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, after a ten-day honeymoon in Florida.

At approximately that same hour, his pretty blonde bride will begin learning the hang of running her husband's 15-room Park Avenue apartment. That is one of her major goals in life, the new Mrs. Rockefeller said Monday.

"I want to go back into obscurity and start leading a normal life," she told reporters. "A normal life to me is being a wife and running my house properly."

Naturally, Mrs. Rockefeller will not be expected to do all the cooking and dusting by herself, as the staff of servants that attended her bridegroom in his bachelor days is still on hand.

And, like any other bride, "Bobby" wants to show off her new home. She said:

"We plan to entertain our friends and the life of any other recently and happily married couple."

The bridegroom said they had no immediate plans except to get settled as quickly as possible.

Olds Urges Curbing of Bank Credit

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Irving S. Olds, prominent steel maker, said Monday he believed that putting a halter on bank credit would control inflation.

Passing a law "which would purport to freeze prices, and may be also wages, at some arbitrary ceilings" is no way to do it, he said in an address prepared for delivery at a luncheon held as part of Yale's annual Alumni Day observance.

Olds, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation Board of Directors and a Fellow of the Yale Corporation, said inflation came about when people were able "to come into the possession of money without concurrently merchandising goods or services or equivalent value."

Borrowing from commercial banks is one way to do this, he said.

Background to Business

State May Re-Activate Children's Code Group

The State of Georgia may take steps to supervise boarding homes for children in order to prevent recurrence of acts of cruelty such as recently took place in Atlanta.

Acting Gov. Thompson said Monday he would activate the long dormant Georgia Children's Code Commission if he found, in a conference with the Attorney General's office, that an act passed in 1922 had not been repealed.

The act provides for appointment of a commission to study conditions affecting child life and recommend legislation.

Assistant Attorney General A. J. Hartley, former State Welfare Director, previously had said the old act is still in effect although such a commission apparently had not been appointed for more than 20 years.

The commission would be composed of one superior court judge, one Representative, one Senator, and a representative of each of the following organizations: Federation of Women's Clubs, State Council of Social Agencies, (now Georgia Conference on Social Welfare) State Board of Health, State Board of Public Welfare, State Federation of Labor, State Department of Education, and Georgia League of Women Voters. Their terms would be for five years and they would be named by the Governor.

DECISION

Democratic National Committee member and former Governor) and M. E. Thompson called their rump convention they both knew that it was contrary to the laws of the State and the rules of the Democratic Party.

"They hoped, by their brazen attempt to steal the Democratic Party, to do two things, (1) Bar me from being a candidate for Governor, and (2) Circumvent the county-unit system and force the real election into the General Election. Their brazen effort has failed. There will now be one Democratic Primary conducted on the county-unit system."

The Court held that the April Convention at Macon called by Thompson, Rivers and Mrs. Price was illegal. Hence, the Convention's action in attempting to purge Peters and replace him with Rep. W. E. Jones, of Augusta, was illegal, the Court ruled.

The High Court held that Thompson, Rivers and Mrs. Price had no authority to call a second Democratic Convention.

Taking jurisdiction of the dispute over the Chairmanship of the State Democratic Party, the Court held that a legal question was involved since the Legislature imposes duties on the Chairman. While the office itself is not a public office, proceedings can be taken against the Chairman since the office does have a status similar to that of a private corporation.

Associate Justice Lee B. Wyatt, absent in Germany, did not participate in the decision. The opinion, concurred in by all other Justices, was written by Associate Justice Tom S. Candier.

The Court unanimously upheld a decision by Judge Grover C. Anderson in Richmond Superior Court which some time ago gave an all-out victory to the Talmadge group.

The decision "delighted" former House Speaker Roy W. Harris, of Augusta, an attorney for Peters and adviser to Talmadge. William Morris, Chairman of the State Democratic Committee, set-up by Thompson's Convention, declared he would abide by the Court's verdict abolishing his group.

From Manchester, Chairman of the Supreme Court, the final legal authority in our State, has unanimously decided the regular Democratic Executive Committee, elected by the 1946 Democratic Convention, is not only the regular Democratic but the legal State Democratic Executive Committee controlling all Party affairs in this State.

I am sure all Georgia Democrats join with me in this good news. It is my purpose to call a State Convention and a meeting of our State Executive Committee in the near future for the purpose of making provisions for the Democratic Primary this Summer and a representation in the National Convention in Philadelphia in July.

"In the primary, we will be delighted to have any Georgia Democrat who so declares himself to run in that primary for any office have the assurance that the primary election will be held by the regular County Democratic Committees in the same manner they have held these elections in the past, and whoever is elected will be certified. No effort will be made to punish anyone."

Monday's decision was the second to be rendered by the State Supreme Court in the dispute between Thompson and Talmadge factions.

Thompson was the winner in a 5-to-2 decision, early in 1947 when the Court favored his claims to the Governorship. Thompson claimed the office on the grounds that he was elected Lieutenant-Governor and should fill the term for which the late Gov. Elect Eugene Talmadge was elected. Herman Talmadge contended he was elected by the Legislature after receiving the most "write-in" votes in the November General election. The Court ruled that the incumbent Gov. Arnall should hold over, but since he was resigning, the office would go to Thompson.

Talmadge leaders denounced the Court and announced plans to defeat them when they sought reelection as Talmadge, himself, vacated the Governor's office in compliance with the decision.

Then Thompson sought to purge Peters, on the charge that he bolted the Party in supporting Herman Talmadge as an independent candidate against the Democratic nominee (Talmadge's father) in the General Election.

A second convention was held and Morris installed as Chairman in place of Peters. Ever since that time, the opposing factions have been branding each other "bolters," and two primaries appeared in the offing for 1948. Finally, Peters asked the Courts to decide which was the Chairman. Morris contended the matter was a political one rather than a judicial one.

The Democratic National Party, meanwhile, has recognized the Thompson faction—inviting Morris to make reservations for the National Convention.

Tired, 'All-In'— Listless Feeling Brought To Halt

As Vibrant Energy is Released
To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Do you get up in the mornings still tired, feel down-and-out all day? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Overwork, lack of sleep, cold, flu or other illness often wear down the red-blood-cells.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that 888 Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the 888 Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, 888 Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on 888 Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—drive flesh all out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. 888 Tonic keeps Build Sturdy Health.

Murder Trial Deferred On Jury Racial Issue

Constitution State News Service.

MONROE, Feb. 23—The trial of Isaiah Grimes, 27-year-old Negro, indicted on three counts of arson and one of murder, was postponed Monday until the August term of court, after Judge Henry West, of Walton Superior Court, ruled that the four panels of white jurors called for this term of court could not consider Grimes' case because Negroes had not been called for jury service.

Judge West denied, however, a motion by Defense Atty. Dan Duke to quash the indictments against the Negro. Duke said he would appeal the ruling.

In the crowded Walton County Courthouse, Duke challenged the jury panel and the system of Judge West and Sol. Gen. D. M. drawing jurors. He presented a Pollock, Duke denied he was hired petition showing Walton County by the Society for the Advancement of Colored People to defend books but has had no Negroes on Grimes, and said he had been re-grand juries or trial juries for tained by A. T. Walden, Atlanta more than 20 years. He said his Negro attorney.

HUSBAND PHONES IN TALE OF HOLDUP; CONFIDES IT WAS 'FOR WIFE'S BENEFIT'

BALTIMORE, Feb. 23—(AP)—Police Lt. Ralph Amrein assigned a patrolman to the case when a 38-year-old man telephoned a hair-raising tale of a holdup.

Complete with times, places and details, he described how two bandits had poked a nickel-plated revolver in his ribs, commandeered his car for some distance, emptied his wallet, and said, "If you follow us, we'll let you have it."

But when the patrolman interviewed the complainant, the latter confided that the telephone conversation had been for his wife's benefit. The $33 had really disappeared into a pin-ball machine.

Lt. Amrein, a married man himself, took no action against him.

—Proved Better Than Natural Rubber!

You may have heard talk about how synthetic rubber could never equal the wearing qualities of natural rubber. ★ Forget it! ★ You may have heard that the U.S.A. would always be dependent upon natural rubber sources in the Far East. ★ Not so! ★ You may have heard that the advocates of a great American synthetic rubber industry were just visionary dreamers. ★ *Sure, they said that about a lot of pioneering Americans . . . Phillips research scientists have perfected a new synthetic rubber called "Philprene."

"Philprene" treads have shown as much as 50% longer wear than natural rubber tires.

Our engineers have learned how this new synthetic can be produced speedily and in quantity.

Dixie Governors Ask U.S. Help on 3 Points

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—(AP)—Southern Governors here to protest President Truman's civil rights program took time out Monday to let the Government know what else they want.

The Governors are asking for:

1. Congress to provide for regional education;
2. The Interstate Commerce Commission to put freight rates it ordered in 1945 into effect, and
3. Congress to settle a dispute over ownership of land under coastal waters.

South Carolina Gov. J. Strom Thurmond said Congress must pass a law allowing States to enter into a compact for regional schools. Gov. Millard Caldwell, of Florida, has invited legislators through their own Governors to a conference at the Capitol.

According to North Carolina Gov. R. Gregg Cherry, the South especially needs schools of forestry, dentistry, mining and textiles. Gov. Thurmond also made known the Southern Governors' displeasure with the "slow progress" made by ICC in establishing its order lowering Southern freight rates 10 percent and jacking up those in the North 10 percent.

In the tideland dispute, Governors of Florida, Virginia and South Carolina were among early witnesses as a Senate-House Committee opened hearings. Federal ownership of tidelands is a step toward "the steady economic strangulation of the States," Gov. Caldwell observed.

Then, placing his hand on the shoulder of the baby star's mother, he continued: "But we don't want to forget the goose that laid the golden egg!"

SALLY FORTH Says: Mildred Carpenter To Wear Grandmother's Bridal Lace

Many years ago when Mildred Carpenter's grandmother, the late Mrs. Guy Carpenter, was married, her wedding gown and sheer linen handkerchief were trimmed in exquisite Duchesse lace which had been made especially for her in Brussels, Belgium. Mrs. Carpenter, the former Anne Milliken, was a noted belle and beauty of Florence, Ala. After her marriage the dress and handkerchief were packed away for safekeeping.

In later years, Mrs. Carpenter's only daughter, Anne, now Mrs. C. W. Webster, of Pelham Manor, N. Y., announced her betrothal. Out of the packing box came the beautiful old lace which, during the passage of time, had taken on a faint ivory tint. So, when Anne ascended the aisle of All Saints Episcopal Church in the early 1920s, her wedding attire was enhanced by the same lace which her mother had worn, and she carried the same fragile handkerchief.

For almost 28 years Anne has carefully guarded the cherished family lace. When she was told recently that her lovely blonde niece and godchild, Mildred, was engaged to John T. Fulwiler, Jr., she hurried to Atlanta, bringing the lace with her to trim Mildred's bridal gown, which, according to first-hand reports, will be a charming creation of ivory satin. The bertha will be fashioned of the heirloom lace. The lace also will be used on the sleeves and to form inserts in the billow skirt, and another piece will form the becoming coronet. Like her grandmother and aunt before her, Mildred will also carry her handkerchief.

One of Mildred's bridesmaids will be Mimi Wellman (Mrs. Rankin) Smith, of Athens, in whose wedding she also served as an attendant. Mimi's wedding veil belonged to her mother-in-law, Christine McEachern (Mrs. Taylor B.) Smith, and was given to her for the occasion. Mimi offered it to Mildred and, when the veil arrived, the pattern in the lace exactly matched that in the lace which will grace Mildred's gown. The lovely veil was also worn by another of Mildred's bridesmaids and Mimi's maid of honor, Nancy Bentley, of Athens, when she became the bride of Lanier Scruggs, of Columbus, recently.

Here's another interesting note about Mildred's wedding. The date, March 30, happens to be the birthday anniversary of a third bridesmaid, Margaret Anne Speas.

To Wed at Strauss Home

When Lillian Lazarus weds Alfred Wolf on Thursday, March 4, the lovely afternoon ceremony will take place at the home of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Strauss, on Fairview Road. Which is particularly appropriate—for this reason.

The Strauss home, which was originally built for Oscar's father, is one of the finest examples of the genius of the late Neil Reid, who was one of the South's most gifted architects. Now it so happens that Lillian is the niece of the late Rudolph Adler, who was also a prominent Atlanta architect. Before his death Mr. Adler became associated with Mr. Reid, thereby changing the name of the firm, Hentz & Reid, to Hentz, Reid & Adler.

Only the members of the bride couple's families and a few close friends will witness the ceremony. Lillian, who was born in Germany, serves in a buying capacity for Rich's, Inc. Her fiancé, Mr. Wolf, is associated with the Henry Chanin Company.

THRILLS HOUSE

Melchior, Prankster, Dominates

By HOWELL JONES

A good-natured, mischievous and thoroughly naughty Lauritz Melchior Monday night stood a large audience at the Municipal Auditorium on its collective head with one of the most unusual concerts ever heard in Atlanta.

It was Melchior the comedian, Melchior the prankster and Melchior the song leader who thrilled the throng. Melchior as just a singer—was just a singer.

When he completed his regular program plus a more than generous number of encores, the applause was so terrific that the Great Dane of opera fame had to drop a hint in order to get the audience to leave. He took his last curtain call with his overcoat on.

That was but the last of a number of such antics that marked the entire last half of the program. Before that he had: 1. Ruined completely what would have been a fine orchestral version of Strauss' ever popular "Emperor Waltz" when he stuck his head from behind the curtain for a little extemporaneous vocalizing, and 2. directed his large and wildly enthusiastic audience in a "community sing."

It was not the great tenor's singing that spoiled the Strauss waltz; it was the thunderous applause given him that drowned out the orchestra's coda. As a result, the orchestra was allowed a second selection. During the first half of the program, Melchior won polite applause for his singing of works by Grieg and Wagner.

"HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO YOU"—Lauritz Melchior, tenor great of the Metropolitan Opera Association, gave a special performance for his old-time friend, Robert Hecht, Monday night when he sang "Happy Birthday" for the Atlantian. The "unscheduled" recital came only a few minutes before Melchior scored a terrific success before a large "Pop Concert Series" audience at the Auditorium.

BLOODLESS COUP

Proclaims Self U. S. Dictator

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 23—(UP)—Julius J. Noser, a retired contractor, Monday proclaimed himself "Dictator of the United States and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces."

Noser, President of the American Taxpayers' Association, said he took the "presidential oath" this morning at his home in South St. Louis. He was worried about the state of the nation.

Noser claims that since President Truman left on his Caribbean junket, the country hasn't got anybody to run it. "I guess people can't hardly live with things like that going on," he said. "Why, if President Truman should go to Cuba he would place himself under the protection of a foreign government. Might even lose his citizenship, maybe."

Noser says his term as Dictator will last only until a new President takes over on Jan. 20, 1949. He didn't say so, but he hopes that President will be Noser.

Noser says he based his proclamation as a Dictator on the Constitution. What part he couldn't say, offhand. "I like to do things legal," he said, "but I'm not going to let any questions interfere with my actions."

Noser, who has a wife, three grown children and nine grandchildren, said he hasn't made up his mind when he'll leave for Washington to take over the White House.

"Maybe Thursday," he said. "But I want to see what Mr. Truman says about it, first."

Used Fats? YOU BET THEY'RE STILL NEEDED!

Lady, tie a string around your finger to remember your used fats are still needed to help ease the greatest shortage of fats and oils in the world's history. Our government says the supply isn't nearly enough to meet today's industrial needs. One way you can help prevent this supply from getting too low, is to turn in used fats.

You say you re-use them for cooking? Good! But, there are always a few drops left after that to save. What about trying wartime tricks again, like melting down fat trimmings, skimming gravies? You'll salvage double!

Remember, too, no other kitchen waste can be turned into cash... and how cash counts in these days of high food costs. The prices butchers pay for used fats are way up, on the average. So don't throw your fats out... turn 'em in!

LET'S SEE NOW . . . Mrs. Mitchell And Girl Scouts

By DORIS LOCKERMAN,
Woman's News Editor

There is a wistful story going the rounds of the Girl Scout groups in Atlanta about a pig-tailed child who turned up one afternoon at the door of a home where the Girl Scouts were meeting. She told them she would like to join the Girl Scouts. The leader shook her head regretfully and told her she was sorry.

"We'd love to have you, dear," she said, "but we'll have to put you on our waiting list."

The child settled back, comfortably against the stoop. "Then I'll just wait here," she said.

Another poignant reflection of Scouting in Atlanta is the little girl who was overheard pledging solemnly, "On My Girl Scout Waiting List Honor."

Some people have night mares of appearing undressed in public, of flying through space, or being caught in Atlanta traffic jams, but Mrs. William Mitchell, new President of the Atlanta Girl Scout District, dreams of waiting lists with long lines of little girls standing patiently before the Girl Scout office.

"I want to change that," she said, and you feel she will. "I hope we can offer Girl Scouting to every girl in Greater Atlanta, regardless of her status, creed or race."

Mrs. Mitchell looks exactly like a grown-up Girl Scout . . . you know, small and bright-eyed, and appealing, with the alert kind of face that probably had freckles sprinkled on it when she was wearing her braids down instead of up.

She believes that Scouting molds children into decent, responsible citizens, and while they are being molded, it helps them live as happy children.

To her it is a pitiful deprivation that little girls in our community do not have half as much provision made for their well-being and development as little boys.

MRS. WILLIAM MITCHELL
Woman at Play

"And it is so important that little girls grow up well-rounded," she says thoughtfully. "She gives her philosophy to the whole family she eventually will have."

Mrs. Mitchell is an arts-and-crafts-person, which, if you know arts-and-crafts-persons means that she can do anything, and that she lives amid originality and colorful artistry. Her own personal hobby is puppetry, and she once presented an entire annual report to the Girl Scout Board with puppets, satirizing the unimportant little habits and patterns as subtly as she emphasized the important accomplishments.

Associated With Scouting 17 Years

She has been associated with Scouting for 17 years, beginning with her own membership and extending to the Brownie-dom of her own small daughter, Conrad, seven. (She has a son, Billy, who is 11 and a Cub Scout, too.)

Under her administration, the Scouts hope to achieve three goals: They hope to offer Scouting to every girl in Fulton and DeKalb Counties, provide camp for every girl (an energetic goal), and work toward a new democratic constitution, with the board elected by the 1,000 adult volunteer workers in the Scouting movement here.

That, in itself, is revolutionary, and it will probably be a gradual development.

To reach the first goal, the one of providing Scouting for every girl in the area, will take at least 300 new volunteer women workers, soon, and even that does not dismay the new President.

"There is good leadership here," she says, "if we only look hard enough for it. We will look hard."

Those who know Mrs. Mitchell's hopeful and intelligent prodding toward a better deal on parks for Atlanta people will have no doubt that she will get what she wants for the Girl Scouts.

WHITE COLLAR GIRL

Harness Your Ups and Downs

By TRILLE GERMON

"Well—I guess we all have our ups and downs." I heard my Grandfather say that once when I was a little girl and I immediately thought of my swing hanging from the limb of the high tree and ran out to swing up and down, singing to myself in a little sing-song, "Ups-and-downs and ups-and-downs."

I was to hear the expression many times through the years. It is a homey old saying and was used as a conversational topic, much like the weather. We hear it now in modern conversations, only it has a new name—"Emotional Cycles."

DR. REXFORD B. HERSEY, Scientist and Psychologist, has made an intensive study of the nervous system during the past 20 years, has done much industrial research, both in the United States and in Germany. Particularly has he studied the working man. His findings are important to all of us—as white collar workers, and to the Boss as well. He establishes the fact, by meticulously kept charts and records, that we literally do have our "ups" and "downs," and that each of us can easily learn to recognize and know our personal emotional cycle.

It is important to know how to chart the ebb and flow of your spirits. Dr. Hersey says you can establish your low periods by marking on a calendar the day or days you feel depressed and extremely low-spirited. Do this for a few months and you may find a regularity in the rise and fall. The usual interval between low periods is 33 to 36 days.

WHAT IS THE ADVANTAGE in predicting when you will be in "low"? Well—you just won't attempt to climb any hills—you will do your easier, more routine work at this time, and you will guard against being tormented by doubts and worries. You will guard against mistakes in your work, in your judgment and against accidents. You will RECOGNIZE your emotional hazard and be forewarned, therefore forearmed.

If your work is bad and the Boss criticizes, you won't wonder despairingly if you are losing your grip. You will know that you—and perhaps the BOSS—may be in an emotional "low." Dr. Hersey advises: "Be sure not to let unimportant troubles be magnified just because you are down." PERSONAL OBSERVATION: Don't quit your job because things don't go right.

WHAT IS THE ADVANTAGE in predicting when you will be in "high"? Save your most ambitious project for that time. You will have greater confidence, more energy and all of the faculties will be keener. You will be stimulated by difficult tasks and this is the time you will do your creative work. Maybe you'll feel so confident you'll ask for that raise, but better be sure of the Boss's emotional cycle—you'll want him to be in high good humor too!

Life must have its up and downs. Sometimes smiles and sometimes frowns. But: If we learn the pattern is true. We'll shape our lives with less to rue!

REDUCING? HERE'S A HELPFUL TIP

HIS NAME WAS JUNIOR

Editor Chats With Ice Box!

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

Well, thaw me out and call me wilted, I have met a refrigerator who knows my name!

He greeted me frostily in Rich's Store for Homes Monday morning in a scolding bass voice reserved for errant children. Then, while the public supported my fainting figure, he gave me a singeing welcome for being a few minutes late to his Atlanta debut.

His name was Junior, he said, and he carried on quite a conversation. He discussed long skirts and recipes and telephone numbers, popped a top door open and displayed his coldest compartment, slammed back his torso door to show his capacity (amazing), shot a shelf out into my face like a sassy tongue, blinked a red light on his tie, turned on his rollers and walked away.

He did, too. He is said to be General Electric's latest brainchild, who may be a product of electronics, radioactivity, atomic science or Edgar Bergen. On second thought, he may have been a product of my imagination.

Anyway, all I needed to start the week out right was a warm little chat with an icebox.

To Remove Grit

Warm water will remove grit more quickly than cold when washing spinach and other greens. After you remove the roots, heavy stems and undesirable leaves, the greens should be washed in a number of waters. Washing should continue until no grit is present and the leaves should be lifted from one water to another so that sand or grit can settle at the bottom of the pans and be thrown away.

Country Lass Dressed As Pretty as City Cousin

By MAYNITA GERRY

The question isn't, "How're you gonna keep 'em down on the farm?" but rather, "How're you gonna keep 'em away from the farm?" after they've seen what Miss Jane Gibbs and the Simplicity Pattern Company are doing to make the 4-H misses as pretty and well-groomed as the latest crop of city-bred debs.

It is Miss Gibbs's duty, and pleasure, as stylist for the National 4-H Council, working with and for the Simplicity Pattern Company, to study the habits, lives and needs of all the 4-H Clubbers, the feminine contingent thereof, and choose the clothes, on a seasonal basis, that best fill their requirements.

"In doing this," said Miss Gibbs at a recent showing of their suggested fashions for a group of 4-H Club girls, advisors, leaders and Home Demonstration agents from Fulton, Cobb, Paulding, Carroll, Gwinnett, Henry, DeKalb, Spalding and Newton Counties, "it is necessary to take into consideration the various sizes found in a cross-section of girls ranging in age from 10 to 20 years. Some are fat, some are thin, some tall, some short, and suitable patterns are chosen for each size and age group."

Some of the clothes shown included a bolero suit of a navy rayon and cotton fabric, worn with a red and white candy-striped blouse. The full, flared skirt had a self cummerbund emphasizing the tiny waist, and, as pointed out by Miss Gibbs, a suit of its type could be subjected to an almost unlimited change of blouses.

For a chubbier miss, waiting for her curves to settle down, was a pastel plaid jumper made from a simple princess pattern, worn with a Gibson Girl blouse and hairdo.

A white pique evening dress with a full circular skirt and low rounded neckline encircled with a double ruffle of Swiss embroidery was laterally treated with a brace of hip pads.

The star of the show though, was a small crocheted cloche with a buttoned-on brim and a removable, also crocheted circlet of self flowers. It was practical as well as whimsical.

Gentlemen, Golf Is Gentleman's Game

The gentlemen on the professional golfing circuit seem to have forgotten what game they are playing.

Recent quibbling about digging divots, grooving club faces and even fist fights would indicate the boys forget the game of golf is a gentleman's game and those who play it should act accordingly.

Even international implications have arisen. The first followed the Ryder Cup matches when Henry Cotton, the British pro, professed the opinion that Americans didn't play according to the rules.

Mr. Benny Hogan was aroused by such dastardly implications to the extent of threatening to punch Mr. Cotton right in his back the next time he saw him.

Things reached a serious point in a recent Texas tournament when Henry Ransom became peeved with an Australian pro named Van Nida and proceeded to practice a few hand mashie shots on him. This resulted in Ransom's suspension for two weeks and the naming of George Schneider as "czar" of the circuit to settle such controversies.

George didn't have to wait long to start earning his pay.

At New Orleans, Brother Bobby Locke, the poker-faced South African who is an eagle-eyed guardian of his own pocketbook, and his chances of increasing the size of same, protested that Fred Haas was using clubs with too deeply grooved faces.

Mr. Haas, playing on his home course, was leading the field by a comfortable margin at that time. But by the time he finished flinging down his clubs to satisfy Mr. Locke and had otherwise become the center of controversy, his mind wasn't entirely concerned with golf.

As a consequence, his final 36-hole score soared to astronomical heights and he was fortunate to finish in a tie for second place behind Bob Hamilton.

In the same tournament, Mr. James Demaret, last year's leading money winner, picked up and departed for parts unknown after playing only eight holes of his second round, which forced Mr. Schneider to eliminate him from Vardon Trophy competition.

Such bickering is an indication that the game has become far too commercial.

Before the New Orleans Open, Lloyd Mangrum was leading the year's money winners and he had earned exactly $4.31 for every swing of the club.

It is true that only the top 10 or 15 winners do any better financially than break even on the circuit, but it is also true that such squabbles as we have cited would not arise if the pros weren't doing everything possible to get into that select circle.

The days of $15,000 events, so prevalent during the war, appear to be about over. We were looking at a list of coming events the other day and all of them were for $10,000.

You may recall that the pros refused to play for less than $10,000 tournament a couple of years ago and such commercialism forced cancellation of old and established meets like the Thomasville, Ga., Open.

This definitely is not good public relations.

And it may herald the time when the boys will be looking for places to play instead of the tournaments seeking them as it is now.

The paying customer is not long going to stand for the stars quibbling in huffs and seemingly everlasting arguments about rule violations.

He expects the big games, as well as the little boys, to play in his tournament and to play the game according to the rules.

He pays his money to watch the pros play golf, not stage something which sometimes attains the odor of professional wrestling.

It's high time they realized this and it's high time the customer is given an even break.

Browns Give Up Chappuis

CLEVELAND, Feb. 23—(P)—The Cleveland Browns Monday night gave up draft rights to Bob Chappuis, Michigan's great half-back.

Details of the deal were not revealed, but Coach Paul Brown said the all-America conference champion traded their draft rights to Chappuis to another conference club for players to be named later.

The trade was made "with a view to strengthening the overall league structure," the announcement said. That means the half-back from the Big Nine and Rose Bowl championship team will play for the Brooklyn Dodgers, Chicago Rockets or Baltimore Colts if he signs with the Junior Professional Football League. The National League also is bidding for the ace back.

Cleveland drafted Chappuis in 1946 but made no attempt to sign him until his college eligibility was used up at the end of last season.

A half-back in Fritz Crisler's single wing, Chappuis probably would have been shifted to the T-formation spot had he signed with Cleveland. The Browns are well fortified at this position already with Otto Graham and Y. A. Tittle of Louisiana, considered one of the South's best passers in recent years.

Dons Seek Crisler On Own Terms

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23—(P)—The Los Angeles Dons of the All-America Pro Football League want Michigan's Fritz Crisler to coach the 1948 team and General Manager Harry Thayer says "Crisler can write his own ticket."

A spokesman indicated Crisler would get more than $50,000 a year if he signed a Don contract, but Thayer declined to discuss the maximum he would pay.

"If Crisler is willing to enter the Pro ranks he can't afford to turn down what we are ready to offer him," Thayer told newsmen.

The Dons tried and failed to get Carl Snavely, of North Carolina, as coach for 1948. Dudley DeGroot, now at West Virginia, coached the Dons until late in the 1947 season.

Sports Arena, Alabama Teachers, Fort Bragg Impressive in SEAAU

Alabama State Teachers College, of Jacksonville, Ala., the top-seeded 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N. C., and Sports Arena Rebels, loomed as the teams to beat as play in the annual Southeastern AAU basketball tourney reached the quarter-finals Monday night at Sports Arena.

The Alabamians, coached by the veteran J. E. Stephenson, brother of the famous ex-Chicago Cub outfielder, Riggs Stephenson, romped over a highly rated Fort Jackson team, 64-45, and showed the best teamwork thus far in the meet.

Fort Bragg's representatives, winners of the recent Third Army tournament, whipped Stephens Sporting Goods, of Atlanta, 54-46, but only after they had trailed the inspired Alabamians through the first 38 minutes of play.

The Rebels, paced by "Chuck" Kemmitzen, who scored 13 points, trounced Epps' Jewels, of Birmingham, 46-37.

In the first round games, E. Z. Mills, of Cartersville, trounced the Berry College team, of Rome, 73-40; Callaway Mills from Manchester, Ga., stopped East Point Elks, 58-56, on a last-minute basket by substitute Tillman White; Glazier's Steel, representing Knoxville, prevailed over the Atlanta YMCA, 60-43; and Fort Benning's Doughboys outlasted Pacolet Mills, 68-65.

The Airborne-Stephens scrap was one of the hardest fought games on Monday's program. Sparked by Rabbit Jordan, Georgia Tech star, Stephens stepped into a commanding lead and held it until the talented Paratroopers finally collapsed them, 40-39, with only seven minutes to go.

Jordan, who scored 44 points in Sunday's game against Blue Ridge, tallied 12 against the Troopers. Lamar Jordan was high for Stephens with 16.

'Moose' Miller Resigns At Tech, Goes to Cornell

Frank (Moose) Miller, a most elusive halfback on or off the gridiron, reversed his field again Monday and headed North for entrance in Cornell University.

Another climactic chapter in the "Off again, on again, gone again, Flannigan" type of story about the former Decatur Boys High half-back was written when he announced to Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Dodd Monday noon that he had decided to quit school at the Flats and enter Cornell. He hopped a plane a few hours later for New York.

Miller, who was one of the most sought-after high school players in the State after leading the Coach Bobby Dodd, of Georgia Tech, had little comment on Miller's decision.

"Naturally, I hate to lose him," he said, "because he's a good football player as well as a track man. I understand he wanted to study business administration, a subject he couldn't get at Tech, so we didn't try to change his mind."

Miller will be eligible for football at Cornell after a year's residence.

NGIC in scoring for two championship Decatur teams, told The Constitution Monday night at the airport before catching the New York plane that he had given it a try at Tech during the Fall quarter and decided that "four years of studying engineering would be wasted since I don't want to be an engineer."

"I began thinking about my original plans of going to Cornell way back in December," said Miller. "It was then that I contacted Cornell officials and told them if I could still get in school there I should like to do so in order to study Labor Relations and Industrial Management. They have a wonderful course in that and it is something which will help me in later life. I hope to go into business for myself some day."

"Everyone has been wonderful to me at Tech. Bobby Dodd and George coaches are among the best in the country. I'm quite sure," Miller said, "and I hate to leave like this, but it is just that I think I made a mistake to start with and I figured I'd have to correct it now or never."

The 160-pounder was sought by many schools after his graduation last Fall. He is a fine track man, having run the 100-yard dash in 10 flat and the 220 in 22.35.

Miller first signed a grant-in-aid to go to Georgia Tech last Spring. Later he changed his mind and wanted to go to Cornell. A short time after he reversed himself again and entered Tech too late to be eligible for varsity competition in the 1947 season. He scrimmaged all Fall with the Red Shirts and was star in the Tech-Thanksgiving Day game.

His mother, Mrs. Marguerite McKinney, who saw him off on the plane, said: "Frank didn't even tell me about changing his mind until a day or two ago. I am greatly upset about what people will say. I know it took a lot of courage for him to do what he is doing though. It is strictly up to him. I hope he is making the right decision."

Miller, when questioned about whether or not he planned to play football at the Ithaca, N. Y., school, said: "I plan to go out for football and track. Coach Lefty James mixes the T with the single wing, and I am glad. I like the single wing formation as much as I do the T. I figure I'll get to play probably even more up there than I would at Tech."

The star was to fly on Eastern Airline's Constellation to New York City and catch another plane for Ithaca, arriving at Cornell this morning.

Baroudi's Manager May Lose License

CHICAGO, Feb. 23—(P)—The Illinois State Athletic Commission Monday ordered Mike Spinelli, New York textile trucker, to show cause on March 8 why he should not be suspended as a boxing manager in connection with the ring death of Sam Baroudi.

The Commission said that as Baroudi's manager, Spinelli falsely gave 21 as the age of the 20-year-old Akron, Ohio, negro fighter, who died of cerebral hemorrhage early Saturday, six hours after a 10-round bout with Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati.

Under the Illinois code, a fighter under 21 cannot participate in bouts of more than six rounds.

LSU Coach To Be Named In 2 Weeks

BATON ROUGE, La., Feb. 23.—(AP)—It will be at least two weeks before Louisiana State University names a new football coach to succeed Bernie Moore, J. G. Lee, Chairman of the University Athletic Council, said Monday.

Moore was named Southeastern Conference Commissioner on Saturday.

Meanwhile, applications are being received, said Athletic Director T. P. Heard. He cited LSU regulations which require the Council to make its recommendations to the President, who in turn gives his approval to the Board of Supervisors for final action.

Heard added that a assistant coaches jointly will be in charge of Spring training, which began about 10 days ago.

"If we have an LSU man in the position," the Athletic Director said, "who can properly qualify in ability and experience, he will receive serious consideration by the Council."

Heard stressed that LSU is deeply concerned "to get the best man available" to keep the school on par with others.

Pace-Setting Murphy, Smith on Same Bill

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Smith and Murphy High, locked in a death grip stalemate for first place in the City League, tonight will face their final tests before meeting one another for the title Friday night.

for both the league and G.I.A.A. leads with identical records of nine wins and one loss in league play and 12 triumphs and two losses in the Class AA State competition.

Murphy will tangle with Bass in the 7:30 o'clock opener at Grady court tonight and the Smiths will ring down the curtain against Roosevelt in the 8:30 fracas.

Neither of the leaders is any cinch to triumph in tonight's outings. Swede Phillips' Bass unit gave Smith a mighty scare Saturday night, finally bowing 34-31, while cellar-dwelling O'Keefe was giving Joel Eaves' Eagles all the trouble they cared for before losing, 35-26, to a flurry of late game baskets.

Ray Taylor's Roosevelt quintet will be going all out to take the measure of the Smiths, due both to the neighborhood rivalry angle and the fact they are seeking to wrest third place from Grady and Brown before the end comes. The three are tied with five wins and an equal number of losses each.

Murphy and Shirley Watkins' Smiths have turned in great jobs in recent weeks, however, as both have had their lineups depleted by the mumps epidemic. Smith has been playing without the services of ace Whitey Kuglar and Murphy lost four of its first 10 to the disease. Some of the group may not be able to return to compete in the G.I.A.A. tournament in Savannah, March 3-5, Watkins and Eaves advise.

Police said rivalry between political groups on the University campus for control of the University Students Federation was behind the shooting.

Castro was a former President of the Federation, which takes an active part in Cuban politics. Presidential elections will be held June 1.

Nolan's 32 Points New SEC Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim Nolan's 32 points against Kentucky Saturday night went into the Southeastern Conference records today as another honor for the lanky Georgia Tech center.

Nolan, who led league scoring in 1946 (Conference games only), hit 12 field goals and eight free pitches despite Kentucky's 78-54 win over the Jackets.

The previous mark of 31 points was set by Pinky Lipscomb, of Vanderbilt, against Georgia Tech, in 1941. Lipscomb tallied 13 field goals and five foul shots. The 12 field goals still stand as the League record for one Conference game. It was tallied last year by Russell Reid, of Mississippi, as he scored 27 points against Auburn.

The record for a non-Conference game is 35 points, by John Chaney, of LSU, against Camp Livingston in 1943. Chaney racked up 18 field goals and five foul shots. The 18 field goals still stand as the League record for one Conference game. It was tallied last year by Russell Reid, of Mississippi, as he scored 27 points against Auburn.

Country Graham, of Mississippi, holds the foul-goal record for a single Conference game with 16 against LSU in 1936.

The lineup for the NCAA, which gets under way in Kansas City, New York next March 18, is virtually set with the eighth district and conference champions eligible.

Although only one conference champ, Baylor in the Southwest, has definitely been decided, at least three other teams are practically "in." They are Holy Cross (18-3), representing the New England section (District 1), undefeated New York University (17-0), in the Middle Atlantic sector (District 2), and Brigham Young (13-9), in the Rocky Mountain territory (District 7). Baylor's record is 18-4 including 10 wins and no defeats in conference competition.

The field for the National invitation, which gets under way March 11 at New York's Madison Square Garden, has narrowed down to 18 teams. The selection committee, headed by Chairman Asa Bushnell, plans to mail the invitations next Wednesday.

In addition to Kentucky, semifinalists in the 17 playoffs, St. Louis University (12-2), Western Kentucky (23-1), and De Paul (18-5), appear certain to receive invitations. Kentucky, beaten only by Temple and Notre Dame, has won 25 games.

In the list probably include Bradley (25-2), Tulane (19-2), Bowling Green (25-5), Loyola of Chicago (23-8), La Salle of Philadelphia (17-2), Seton Hall (18-3), Rhode Island State (16-3), Muhlenberg (15-3), West Virginia (13-3), Colgate (11-3), Kansas State (18-3), and Villanova University (14-4) and City College (14-3).

Trout won only 10 games and lost 11 a year ago while drawing a pay check of more than $20,000. Displays the 30th player to sign a Detroit contract, leaving only Hal Newhouse and Freddie Hutchinson, pitchers; Bob Swift, catcher, and Eddie Lake and George Vico, infielders, unsigned.

The Tigers open training March 1 at Lakeland, Fla.

Trustees Ponder McMillin Successor

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 23 (AP)—Indiana University trustees will meet Tuesday at noon to hear recommendations on selection of an Athletic Director to succeed Alvin N. (Bo) McMillin.

The Executive Committee on athletics, composed of four faculty members and three alumni, was asked last week to present its recommendations at Tuesday's meeting.

Campus rumors gave an edge to three men—Assistant Athletic Director Robert A. Cook, Basketball Coach Branch McCracken and Baseball Coach Paul (Pooch) Harrell—for the directorship.

Another name which cropped up Monday was that of Don Lash, former IU track star and now an FBI agent at Lafayette, Ind. Bartley said Lash visited the campus last Saturday but he said he did not know whether he applied for the job. Lash refused to comment.

Hector, Oregon State College skier competing in the Winter carnival ski meet at Mt. Rose Sunday, lost both skis in mid air after making a perfect takeoff.

He landed on both boots, slid and then ran several steps before doing a forward somersault to wind up standing and unhurt.

And the ski-less wonder had sailed through the air 63 feet before making his unorthodox landing—only five feet short of the winning 68-foot leap!

CHANNING COPE'S ALMANAC: Here's Farming Plan 'Simplicity Itself'

TUESDAY, FEB. 24, 1948

Suggestion of the day: There will be a tremendous demand for kudzu crowns during the next 60 days, the dairy people in particular realizing that kudzu will keep up milk production during the drought periods. Kudzu crown producers and those in the market for crowns are urged to get in touch with their County Agents and Soil Conservation Service technicians. One-quarter acre of established kudzu for each head of livestock on the farm will beat the drought and keep up production. Not to mention what it will do for the land. Those who know call it "Earth's Best Friend."

If you have your shotgun loaded and all ready for farm columnists and other game not requiring a license to bag, draw up your kudzu. Get out your pipe and light it and listen to the siren song of one who is about to suggest a way of farming that is simplicity itself. I know, even before you begin to draw a bead on me, that the method is TOO simple, it's just so easy and nice that it surely can't be workable, but yet, there's the mere possibility that it MIGHT work. (We are speaking heavy and complicated apparatus which used to be involved in listening to a radio program, and that now you can get receiving sets small enough to fit in the vest pocket? Well, that's the way things go, so listen to this.)

Suppose a fellow was to put his farm down in three crops, just three. One-fourth of his land (the worst hillside) in kudzu; one-half (the next worst uplands) in sericea lespedeza, and the remaining one-fourth in Kentucky 31 fescue. (We are speaking heavy and complicated apparatus which used to be involved in listening to a radio program, and that now you can get receiving sets small enough to fit in the vest pocket? Well, that's the way things go, so listen to this.)

No plowing will be required once the crops are established. The fescue will need a light harrowing on occasion to work the nitrogen into the soil but this once-over-lightly is simple and inexpensive.

A lime spreader will spread the lime and phosphate for the kudzu and sericea and a cyclone seeder will meet the needs of nitrogen and potash distribution. A mowing machine winds up the list of equipment. Of course, fencing will be needed but this will be necessary in any pasture program.

The farmer sits on his porch with his binoculars handy and at the right instant presses the electric switch that opens the gate into the next pasture and closes the gate behind the departed cattle or sheep. The mower is put to work in the field from which the livestock just departed, in order to clip the weeds and level the stand of fescue or sericea. This residue is stacked in the field for future reference and the pasture is dragged with a spike-tooth harrow to spread the manure more evenly about the pasture.

One other thing before you obey that impulse—there is no danger of blot with this combination. And now we are ready; FIRE!

We missed you yesterday at 6:30 a. m. and again at 12:45 p. m. How about getting with us today?

Until then, Channing Cope

Insurance Agent Tells of Switch To Lighter Calvert

"I'm a moderate man," says Chas. S. Geary, insurance agent, of 126 North Locust St., Centerville, Ill. "That's why I switched to Calvert. It makes such a light yet tasty highball."

Chas. S. Geary Coast to coast, switched to Calvert because they've found it uniformly lighter, smoother, milder. Thousands have learned that it tastes better in highball, cocktail, or "neat."

Today in Radio

By PAUL JONES

Take It or Leave It is coming back to town. Garry (That's My Boy That Said That) Moore and the quizzical troupe will stage the network questions and answers show here April 18. This is the first time Take It or Leave It has originated here since before when Rob Hawk played the Erlanger at that time.

Young in Air Role

Robert Young is taking a postman's holiday. The popular screen star has completed all of his current film assignments and during the past two weeks has been assigned a number of roles in radio.

He makes another of these appearances at 10 tonight on WGST, when he plays the lead in the Studio 54 production of "King's Row."

This is a portrait of a group of townspeople as visualized by a young man who grows up to be the town's distinguished physician. He unmasks an old practitioner who is suspected of a psychopathic hatred for his patients.

Debate Waterways Project

Four Congressmen will get together for an informal discussion on a very controversial waterways project at 8:30 tonight on WCON and ABC, when "Should the St. Lawrence River Seaway Be Adopted?" is the object of the Town Meeting of the Air debate.

The Congressmen are Sens. Henry Cabot Lodge, Massachusetts, Republican; Alexander Wiley, Wisconsin; and George D. Aiken, Vermont, Republican, and Rep. Hugh A. Mead, Maryland, Democrat.

This is best-known home-medicament in the South for relief of rheumatic pain when dampness and bad weather make your muscles feel so painful and sore all over. One teaspoonful of C-2223 in water usually starts to bring grand comfort, and blessed relief from that rheumatic pain "miser." Caution: Use only as directed. Ask at the store for C-2223.

Azalea Festival

March 11 to 14

MOBILE, Ala., Feb. 23—(P)—A prediction that the 1948 Azalea Trail in Mobile would present the greatest floral show in its history was made Monday by Jack Lewis, President of Azalea Trail, Inc., at pre-opening ceremonies.

The flowers were not in bloom because of recent cold weather and cold forced holding of Sunday's ceremony in a hotel.

Lewis said azaleas would be "in their greatest profusion of beauty" during the Azalea Festival, March 11-14.
